Controversy rocks concom as Buzz bumps Bruce

The Wilmington Conservation Commission is the center of a controversy, following a decision last week by Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski to not reappoint concom Chairman Chester Bruce.

The commission has long had a split, a problem which has grown since the appointment of the conservation administrator last year. After the town manager appointed Elizabeth Sabounjian as administrator, the commission asked the town meeting for funds to challenge the manager's authority on the appointment. The town meeting turned down the funding, but the rift never healed. It escalated later with the firing of longtime secretary Ella Belmore, a close associate of Chester Bruce.

The next step has already begun to unfold. On Tuesday, Vice Chairman Bob LaVita submitted his resignation to the town manager, and there is speculation that two more members will resign at next Wednesday's meeting. Letters of protest are also being written.

The town manager has yet to choose a replacement for Bruce on the commission.

When it comes to having fun at the carnival, Nicky and Wayne Lawyer are a couple of jumps ahead of the other kids in town. They were at work on Monday, helping their uncle John Cushing set up the carnival at Wilmington High School. The carnival opens tonight (Wednesday) and runs through Monday night, in conjunction with the town's Fourth of July celebration.

McCoy lashes out at town manager over Bruce firing

Selectman Michael McCoy took a lone stand Monday night against a recent decision of the Wilmington Town Manager not to reappoint Chairman Chester Bruce to the Conservation Commission.

Calling the move "a personal vendetta," McCoy lashed out at Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski for his reputed unfair treatment of a 12-year veteran of the commission.

"Chet Bruce did his job and he did it well," said McCoy as he praised Bruce for being "an asset to the community."

Stapczynski referred to the move as "a basic philosophical decision."

"We have a problem of philosophy. That's all it is," Stapczynski told selectmen. He pointed out that, in the past, he hadn't interfered with Bruce's interpretation of the Wetlands Protection Act or any resulting decisions and he was against the entire Conservation Commission challenging his authority in hiring Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian.

McCoy called Stapczynski's reason an inadequate one for "giving the boot" to a resident who volunteered his services so long and served the town so well.

"I really think it stinks," concluded McCoy.

Other board members backed Stapczynski's action.

Though Bob Cain said "Mr. Bruce did make some good decisions for the town," he went on to add if he had been in the town manager's shoes, he would have fired Bruce when the challenge was first made.

Chairman Jim Stewart called the decision "sound good management" and pointed out that town meeting voters gave some direction by not appropriating funds to challenge the town manager's authority.

Horan to leave Aug. 5

School Superintendent Robert Horan announced last week he will leave the Wilmington system Friday, August 5. The announcement was made in an executive session at Wednesday's school committee meeting.

Chairman Tony Accardi said consultants from the New England School Development Council (NESDC) will assemble a list of possible applicants for interim superintendent so the committee can have a temporary replacement on board in approximately three weeks. According to Accardi, a new superintendent may not be hired until November, following a nationwide posting in major newspapers and approximately 200 educational periodicals in the weeks ahead.

NESDC has suggested that anyone applying for the superintendency not be considered for the acting position, said Accardi. This would eliminate Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski from consideration since he is reportedly applying for Horan's job. At Wednesday's meeting, Dembowski was rehired for one year as assistant superintendent.

Back pay an issue

Back pay for the superintendent of Wilmington schools was raised as an issue by school committeemen Shirley Callan last week as she questioned if the budget could sustain approximately $70,000 in buyback costs. The money would cover 21 weeks of back pay for vacation, personal, and sick days owed to Supt. Robert Horan.

Callan told fellow members she was alarmed since they would need additional money to hire both an interim and new superintendent. Callan said her concern was not directed at Horan on a personal level.

"We better be sure we have the money," she said.

Horan assured the committee he did budget enough funds, totaling $69,000, for the back pay and the consultants. The money is set aside in the superintendent's account, he said.

Lack of evaluations creates problem with re-hiring teachers

Lack of administrative evaluations for some school personnel caused three members of the Wilmington School Committee last week to vote against the superintendent's recommendation to re-elect 16 teachers, directors, and principals for next year. On that list were Principals Robert Coffill and Michael Tikonoff and Director of Performing and Fine Arts Lorraine Kalil.

Though the members were adamant that non-tenured professionals in the system deserve a written evaluation, in the end they reconsidered a three to three vote and agreed to re-hire the staff members for "the sake of the system."

James Demos first raised the issue saying he couldn't re-elect teachers and principals without having an evaluation of their job performance included in their files.

Shirley Callan agreed, saying Supt. Robert Horan hadn't done evaluations for any non-tenured principals in the system. Michael Thomas stated though the faculty members were "outstanding," he would like to see the files kept up to date for their own protection.

Horan argued that most staff members have evaluations. He added the job performance of those remaining was "so evident" that a lack of an evaluation shouldn't be held against them.

The problem Wednesday seemed to be more one of procedure than teacher qualifications.

"These individuals are really standouts in the system," said Chairman Tony Accardi. No one disagreed. However, the motion to re-elect the 16 individuals failed because of a tie vote.

Horan pointed out that once his recommendation is voted down, the teachers are immediately eligible for unemployment benefits which would cost the system $1,536 a week. He said the teachers and administrators would also be free to find positions in another school system.

When a vote was taken to allow the superintendent to recommend each teacher individually, Horan refused, saying he had no further recommendations at this time.

"I think you're costing (the town) money and I think it's ridiculous," Bridget Zukas cried out at Demos, Callan, and Thomas. She noted their action was "very immature."

Demos moved to reconsider the first vote and members voted unanimously to rehire the 16 faculty members.

LOOKING AT OPEN HOUSES

Going to an "open house" can be a good way to begin your househunting effort. It gives you relatively easy access to many houses, as well as offering you the opportunity to explore different neighborhoods in which you might choose to live.

Most open houses are held on weekends, especially on Sunday afternoons. You may find them advertised in the local newspapers or see signs pointing to the properties that are on display. It's best to plan your outing using a good map and the Sundry classified section. Next, plan your itinerary, noting where the promising homes are located and the hours that they'll be shown. Don't forget to bring your note pad. It'll come in handy remembering the special features of each of the homes you'll be viewing.

If you don't find the perfect home through open house viewing, our real estate agents can show you other choice properties. Remember, many of the best homes won't be on the market long enough to be an "open house."

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at Kelley & Kompany. Call us at 658-4171 or stop by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite #10) in Wilmington.

Selectmen reaffirm position on CDAG grant

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington selectmen reaffirmed their intention to apply for CDAG (Community Development Action Grant) funds for the Shawheen River Estates project at their meeting Monday night. The deadline extension for applying for the grant, which would help defray sewer and other infrastructure costs, is June 30th.

Though selectmen said the grant application had been ready for mailing for two weeks, it was held up to allow selectmen to discuss a reduction in project density. At a prior hearing, selectmen had said one of the conditions in applying for the grant was an agreement on the part of the developer to reduce the 220 units by nine. Proponents said with all the other tradeoffs requested, it would be difficult financially to reduce the number of multi units.

Problems arose when other boards, like the Wilmington Planning Board and the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commission, sought tradeoffs for off site infrastructure and sidewalks, respectively. Abutters to the project had requested that part of the $500,000 grant, if received, go toward reducing the size of the project.

Selectmen were in a quandry Monday as representatives from various groups reiterated their requests for use of the funds.

Project attorney John Callan pointed out that proponent Jay Tighe was willing to put in sidewalks, replace water mains, bring in a sewer line, and probably redesign the project somewhat to locate only single family homes near abutters. He said it was his opinion that since the financial picture had changed, these types of issues take precedence over density.

"It's not a dense project; density's not a problem here," Callan maintained. Selectman Robert Doucette took exception to this statement saying that "in a project this size it (density) is really a huge issue."

Chairman Jim Stewart said the board's rationale in holding firm on a nine-unit reduction had been questioned by other boards. He suggested they move forward with the CDAG application and continue negotiating with the development team. He added if selectmen didn't get "appropriate" trade-offs, they would have an option of not releasing the funds.

While Arthur Smith of the Water and Sewer Commission welcomed the development because the proponents will "put a big piece of infrastructure into place," Selectman Michael McCoy spoke out in favor of neighbors' concerns. He noted that the project "has got to affect the quality of life of residents in that neighborhood."

He asked if it would be possible to give "a little bit to the neighbors" in the form of a sewer line down Reed Street or the formation of two permanent cul de sacs to avoid cut-through traffic. Barbara Sullivan echoed his feelings to a degree, saying all sides should get together to "brainstorm" to create a "real win-win situation" for everyone concerned.

Planning board Chairman Carole Hamilton pointed out that trying to get too many amenities or tradeoffs from the proponents was like trying to "get blood from a stone." Callan warned that the town should be careful not to make the project uneconomical for the developer. According to the 774 law, if a town puts too many economic constraints on a developer, he can appeal to the state Housing Appeals Committee. In the end, the board opted to apply for the grant and discuss conditions at a later date.

In related business, it was learned that the town's housing consultants suggested waiving building permit costs and water and sewer fees on the 66 affordable units being proposed. The permit fees, said Stewart, would total $20,955. The water and sewer fees would reportedly total almost $400,000. While Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said waiving fees has been a practice in other towns dealing with similar projects, some board members questioned the legality and precedence being set by such a move.

Water, sewer rates to jump on July 1

by Arlene Surprenant

Effective July 1, Wilmington residents can expect a hike in their water rates from $1.40 per cubic foot to $1.65 and a minimum increase in their sewer rates from $1.05 per cubic foot to $1.65. The uniform rates, said Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, will show up on homeowners' October bills. The rate increases were unanimously approved at last Thursday's meeting of the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commission.

In an update on upcoming projects in his department, Commissioner Arthur Smith told selectmen Monday night the design for the east interceptor should be ready to go out to bid within a year. Since the sewer line will go down Main Street, Smith said he hopes local industries and retail owners affected will help fund part of the project.

Smith said that the commissioners have applied for and received funds to undertake a water main rehabilitation program to replace the bulk of the town's smaller water mains. The project will help increase water pressure in various parts of town and provide better fire protection, he said. The town is being asked to provide $300,000 in matching funds for engineering work.

According to Smith, in the next few weeks, an hydraulic study of the water main system will be complete. Every hydrant in town will be put on a new computer system to help commissioners keep track of water pressure on different streets and reveal weaknesses in the system. Fellow commissioner James Ring is expected to lend his computer expertise to that project.

Smith also cautioned local homeowners to reduce their heavy consumption of water in the months ahead. He explained residents are using more water than can be pumped up to the water tower and that affects water pressure. He added that water storage problems which helped bring about the current water ban will probably continue until storage capabilities are improved in the fall of 1989. It is a possibility also that the water department may bill customers in the future according to how much water they consume rather than stick to a uniform rate.

Finally, Smith praised developer Jay Tighe for his "great gift to the town" in the form of Shawheen River Estates, improvements to the water mains, and the extension of a sewer line from Grove Avenue to Hopkins Street.

Wilmington art students design Lions Club pin

Until recently, the Wilmington Lions Club did not have a distinctive pin of their own. Peggy Power and Stephanie Burns, wives of Wilmington Lions Bob Power and Mike Burns, saw the need for a pin, and decided to tap the talent of the Wilmington High School Art Department. With the guidance of Lorraine Kalil, the head of the art department, and under the direction of art teacher Mrs. Shack, Mrs. Power and Mrs. Burns commissioned a design for a new Lions pin.

The Wilmington art students submitted various designs for the new pin. After the top three designs were selected, a single, final design was created from these three entries. The top three designs came from Angela Lin, Desiree Rowland, and Paul Burke, who were each rewarded with $50.00 savings bonds. Those students receiving honorable mention were Allan Tate, John Gottlander, and Kimberly Zambemardi.

The new Lions pins will be sold only during 4th of July week on the town common. The price will be $5.00, and all monies raised by the sales of pins will go to eye research.

Study finds good water quality at Silver Lake

by Arlene Surprenant

The water quality in Wilmington's Silver Lake is good and is expected to remain so in the foreseeable future, according to two experts from Baystate Environmental Consultants.

In reviewing diagnostic and feasibility studies of Silver Lake begun in February, 1987, Dr. David Mitchell and Dr. Kenneth Wagner gave selectmen a five point plan to restore and enhance the town's main natural resource. They explained the key to any clean lakes program is preservation. With that in mind, the men recommended the following:

...Institute groundwater protection and devise a management plan for the watershed area surrounding Silver Lake. This would include a mandate to have neighbors hook into available sewer lines.

...Improve the performance of the storm drain system.

...Stabilize and regrade sections of lake shoreline that are eroding into Silver Lake.

...Remove areas of nuisance sediment and accumulations of aquatic plants near shore.

...Encourage existing fisheries by putting extra fish cover in the lake.

During their slide presentation, the consultants maintained one of the best ways to reduce nitrates in the lake would be to require tie-ins to the sewer system. They also suggested the lake's recreational uses should be encouraged, especially by including pan fish and loud-mouthed bass in the water. Currently, they added, there is a large concentration of yellow perch because of the kind of cover that exists in the water.

The price tag to implement their recommendations and move into phase two, said Mitchell, would be in the neighborhood of $60,000 to $95,000. The state would be expected to cover approximately 75 percent of the cost and the remaining 25 percent would come from the town and other sources.

It was felt in keeping under $100,000, the town would have a more competitive edge in applying for grant monies. The deadline to apply for funds is reportedly November 15. The town would be told if their application was well received by March and officials could then seek to have town meeting approve matching funds in April's annual meeting.

Abutters and neighbors in the Silver Lake vicinity were out in force to raise concerns, especially about debris which they claim has been thrown in the lake. On a scale of one to ten, with one being the worst case litter scenario, it was felt Silver Lake was a two or three. Most of the debris, said consultants, takes the form of discarded bottles and cans, old boards, sunken boats, and even a bathtub.

In seeking a solution to the litter problem, abutters and consultants suggested the police department enforce closing hours for the town beach and various organizations help clean up the lake once the water level is lowered.

One abutter spoke of the lake's beauty and use as a sanctuary for migrating birds.

"I do live on the lake and it has given me great pleasure over the years," she said.

GETTING YOUR TAX REFUND

It's now a good 10 weeks since tax-filing deadline, the amount of time the Internal Revenue Service said it needed to process tax returns and get refunds in the mail. If you are due a refund and it hasn't arrived, here's how to check it out:

Call TeleTax, the IRS's new automated tax information system, at 1-800-554-4477. Be prepared with your Social Security number and the exact amount of refund you are expecting; having the exact figure is important, because that serves as your identification within the automated system.

If you call from a Touch-Tone phone, the whole thing can be done with pushbuttons. With a rotary phone, you'll have to wait for a human operator, who will ask the same questions. The system will tell you if the check has been mailed. If you do not receive it within 10 days, call Taxpayer Services (1-800-424-1040) or your local tax information number for further assistance.

Allen property had religious uses

by Capt. Larz Neilson
Allen's Coal, on Main Street in South Tewksbury, is located in a grove that is almost entirely in Tewksbury. That grove, and an adjacent field in Wilmington, was for many years a Methodist camp ground during the summer months. In the period before and after World War I the camping ground would be in use for most of the summer.

Before World War I there were several different groups which were termed Methodists, but which did not concur in all ways with other Methodist groups. Today the groups are more unified, in the United Methodist Church.

During the period of "camping" at the Allen property there were five or six large buildings in use similar to the one which burned on Tuesday night. Most of the other buildings were torn down in the period between the two World Wars.

A roaring two-alarm fire leveled the Allen Coal Company building on south Main Street on Tuesday night, and Tewksbury fire officials said arson is suspected. There were no injuries.

The fire began near the rear of the old wooden structure, and a resident of nearby Laite Road in called in to report the blaze at 10:42 p.m. A flurry of calls came into the fire department dispatcher after the

One minute later, the first unit on the scene called to have a second alarm struck, since the structure was fully engulfed. The fire was put under control quickly, and the blaze was mostly out by midnight, except for a few hotspots.

Mutual aid and traffic assistance were provided by Wilmington fire and police units.

As the fire reached its peak, Capt. Kenneth "Bunky" Holden went into the fenced enclosure at the rear of the property and drove out the two Allen's Fuel trucks parked just a few yards from a burning building. The heat of the blaze blistered the paint on one of the trucks and melted part of the windshield, and it was later learned that both trucks were at least partially filled with fuel oil.

At least one barrel of oil was seen burning off during the fire, but there were no serious explosions or fuel splashes.

Officials on the scene said the late night fire was being treated as an act of arson, as another suspicious blaze hit the same building earlier this month.

Shortly after midnight on June 7, a fire of suspicious origin was reported at the rear of the Allen Coal building, but the blaze was quickly put down.

Tewksbury Lt. Bob Fowler said the June 7 blaze started on the back wall of the structure, and caught part of the roof before it was put out. He said he checked the ground nearby but could find no evidence of any "accelerant," such as oil or gasoline, used to hasten the blaze.

Fowler said a green pickup truck was seen near the building shortly before this week's fire, and two men were also seen in the adjacent woods shortly before the hot blaze began. Both leads are being actively investigated by police.

The 7-acre Allen Coal property is being proposed as the site of a High Point alcohol treatment center, but Fowler said the building was not insured at the time of the fire.

"I was stunned to get a letter like that after 12 years of service. It's unreal, but it's a political thing, I guess."

-- Chester Bruce

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

After 12 years of service on the Wilmington Conservation Commission and having held the chairmanship for the past decade, Chet Bruce was given the royal boot last week by Town Manager Reginald 'Buzz' Stapczynski. For the first time in years, Chet was not reappointed to the commission.

If you take 12 years and multiply that by about 100, you'll come up with the number of hearings, town meetings, and endless site visits that Chet Bruce has attended, all in the name of better conservation for the community. Under state law, it's the job of the conservation commission to protect wetlands and the water supply.

But all that was thrown down the drain last week in a terse letter from the manager to Chet Bruce, telling him he would not be reappointed to the commission. This incident might well serve to further erode the manager's credibility in the community.

What people should realize is that the conservation commission is especially sensitive to appointments because of the nature of their work. It's their job to administer the Wetlands Protection Act, the law which prohibits developers (or anyone else) from filling in swamps. A seat on this commission means a lot of late night meetings, coupled with site visits for those who do not have an aversion to mud. Simply put, the Conservation Commission requires a membership with an understanding of both engineering and the environment.

Bruce described his reaction to Stapczynski's letter, which comes just as Bruce is recuperating from a heart attack. "I was stunned to get a letter like that after 12 years of service. It's unreal, but it's a political thing I guess." Bruce went on to say that the town manager is "on a hell of a power kick, and has the support of the majority of the selectmen."

Chet Bruce has lived in town for about 30 years, and along with his service on the conservation commission he's been active with football, Pop Warner, and soccer. During that time, Bruce says, "I don't know of any cases where a member has not been reappointed to the conservation commission if they're doing the job they should do under the state laws."

After several telephone calls, the manager finally agreed to see Bruce, who wanted Stapczynski to justify his letter. His explanation? Bruce has "challenged him". In an interview on Monday, the town manager confirmed this saying he did not reappoint Bruce because, "The commission undertook to challenge the charter."

The challenge Buzz refers to dates back to the 1987 Annual Town Meeting, where the Conservation Commission asked for funding for legal counsel to clarify the issue of who can hire and dismiss conservation commission employees. Buzz explained that, "It's not the decisions of the commission, the issue is the Charter and the fact that the Chairman with a lot of authority in town has questioned the Charter." Buzz firmly stated, "I have become more adamant that the people I appoint reflect the administration the town needs."

At that 1987 town meeting, the article for legal monies, supported by the majority of the conservation commission, failed to pass. As for Chet Bruce, he was not even there but was instead at home recuperating from an aneurysm. "The majority of the board voted to do these things and as chairman I entertained the motions", said Bruce.

What Stapczynski fails to realize is that it's one thing for an employee to challenge an employer, but it should not be a controversy to challenge an official in one's capacity as a member of an independent board or commission.

So now Chet Bruce becomes another victim of the gradual takeover of the Conservation Commission by the town manager's office. Bruce says he wasn't reappointed because "I won't bow down and do things his way, as opposed to how we have been doing things, which is strict adherence to Massachusetts law." As Chet put it, "In the past I've had to go up against personal friends to take a stand I had to take. I do what I have to do for conservation."

But apparently taking a stand isn't what the local administration is looking for. And the victims in the end are you and I. If people who give of their free time to serve on a board or commission are subsequently fired, not because they didn't do their jobs but because they wouldn't play ball with the chief executive officer of the town, the future of this community doesn't look too bright.

A great gift?

by Arlene Surprenant

Almost everyone seems to have jumped on the bandwagon for Shawshen River Estates.

Many town boards favor the project, largely because it will create some affordable housing units which would count toward the state housing goal. Water and sewer commissioners, in particular, favor the project because of a promise by the developer to extend the sewer line at his own expense. This would allow a much needed hook-up to the Shawshen Elementary School to help resolve that building's septic problems. The developer has also agreed to a requirement to increase the size of water mains along Shawshen Avenue. The requirement was set after a water study revealed there was low water pressure in the area.

This is all very commendable.

Arthur Smith, one of the town's respected water and sewer commissioners, is understandably pleased with the cooperation of the project proponents. He has been quoted as calling the project and additional infrastructure "a great gift to the town." However, before the board of appeals issues its decision on a comprehensive permit in July, perhaps we should take one last look at this "great gift" to Wilmington.

Is it a "great gift" when this project is bigger than any development currently under subdivision control or when the 220 multi units will be placed on 10,000 square foot lots or alot less?

Is it a "great gift" when the town has never had zoning that deals with multi-units nor any previous experience with duplexes, much less with triplexes or quadraplexes? Is anyone sure how much of an impact these kinds of units will have?

Is it a "great gift" when we have yet to see designs for each of the units or a true picture of just how dense this project will really be? Attorney John Callan has said this is not a dense proposal and inferred that other issues should take precedence over density. Others, like Selectman Bob Doucette, contend that the project density is high.

Proponents have rarely talked about the number of acres that are wet or in a floodplain or the amount of land which will be turned over for three large retention ponds on site. No units will sit on wetlands or retention ponds. That's when the density increases.

In the past, the planning board has taken pains to minimize effects of dense projects on impacted neighborhoods. Since the board has no real control over a 774 project, that may not be done in this case.

Is it a "great gift" when such a large project will most certainly place a drain on town resources and possibly cause unforeseeable problems in the future? Though officials are trying to cover everything which could conceivably create future problems, it is noteworthy that should anything go wrong during or after construction, the town has been told there will be no extra monies to remedy the situation. Who will bear the financial burden then?

Is it a "great gift" to place extra traffic burdens on Shawshen Avenue? Or to expect a small neighborhood to live with 2,200 vehicle trips a day down Reed Street, if that road is opened for access?

Is it a "great gift" when property owners in the proposed development will have minimal open space or backyards for their children? Or when families and visiting relatives will be forced to share common driveways because there's no room or money for additional parking facilities?

Is it a "great gift" when the town may waive permit fees for such things as plumbing, building permits, and water and sewer hook-ups to the tune of approximately $420,955? This was the suggestion made by the town's housing consultants to make the 66 affordable units more affordable. Under the 774 law, it appears the town could cooperate with the developer in this way. But the question then arises: as laudable as this suggestion may be, will it be the taxpayers who will bear the financial burden in the end? And will this, as Joe Guzzo of the Conservation Commission asked, set a precedent so that others in a lower salary bracket can also have their fees waived for individual homes?

Several officials have praised the development team for going about the comprehensive permit process in "the right way." Perhaps if we were developers and had millions of dollars at stake, we too would be smart enough to go about getting the project built in "the right way."

It is true proponents have agreed to extend the sewer line, replace water mains, put in an expensive pumping station, and include sidewalks in the project. And, yes, they may "bend" toward locating only single family units along abutters' property lines and give a little on the question of access. This is all well and good.

But we shouldn't be deceived. We should remember that gifts are usually given without strings attached or thought of monetary gain. This "great gift" of Jay Tighe and company may well turn out to be an albatross around Wilmington's neck. As the old saying goes, only time will tell.

A formula for poor decisions

by Larz F. Neilson

Wilmington Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski slipped about two grade points on his report card last week when he dropped Chairman Chester Bruce from the Wilmington Conservation Commission.

No matter how you feel about Mr. Bruce, the issue here is the decision-making of the town manager. Instead of citing a particular malfeasance of Mr. Bruce's service in office, or perhaps a directive from the selectmen, the town manager has said that he decided not to reappoint the concom chairman because Mr. Bruce had "challenged" him.

The town manager was referring to a tiff which the concom had raised over the appointment of the conservation administrator. After the town meeting had agreed to fund the position, the conservation commission sought input on the selection of the candidate for administrator. The town manager made the appointment, citing the town charter as the basis of his power. In a previous case where the powers of the town manager had been challenged in court, a judge referred to the town manager's powers as being "of tsarist proportions."

The Conservation Commission went to the 1987 town meeting seeking funds to hire a lawyer to challenge the town manager's choice. The town meeting chose not to appropriate that money.

The town manager apparently did not forget the incident. When Mr. Bruce's term on the concom expired, instead of a letter of re-appointment, he received a letter thanking him for his 12 years service on the commission.

The town manager is thus putting out the word, asserting his authority over all appointed officials. Call it the rule of the head: "Use it, and you'll lose it."

Such a rule is not only demeaning to all boards and officials in town -- it also guarantees poor decisions. Instead of decisions based on an official's estimate of what is best for the town, each decision by an official in fear of his job will be made on the basis of what will cause the fewest waves with the town manager.

The town manager has sacrificed his most valuable resource -- honest information -- in favor of a rubber stamp. He has made it clear that he wants apple polishers, not independent thinkers.

What he has unwittingly done is created a process which, if followed, would eventually lead to his own downfall. If officials are afraid to make the right decisions, it will reflect poorly on the administration of the town, and ultimately on the town manager himself.

Maybe Buzz should go down to the video store and rent "Star Wars." And when he sits down with his bag of popcorn to watch the movie, he should pay particular attention to the scene where Luke Skywalker is given "the power." Along with "the power" he is given the admonition to use it wisely.

Conflict of interest can involve non-relatives, too

The controversy over the dropping of Chester Bruce from the Conservation Commission almost eclipsed an interesting statement which was made in the Wilmington School Committee meeting on Wednesday night. Bridget Zukas told the board that she had called the State Ethics Commission to check on the conflict of interest law.

She said that she was concerned about the relationship between Assistant Superintendent of Schools Henry Dembowski and School Committee member Dr. Michael Thomas. The two men happen to be married to second cousins.

For the record, we also checked with Stuart Kaufman of the State Ethics Commission. He said that there are two portions of the conflict of interest law which could apply here. Section 19 applies to matters involving immediate family. Immediate family does not include second cousins, much less wives' second cousins' husbands.

The section which does apply is Section 23, which prohibits appearance of favoritism. The interesting part of this section is that it can apply to relatives, friends or close associates. The intent is to make sure that the public process is not unduly tainted by personal relationships.

To avoid running afoul of Section 23, an official involved in a voting position must (1) disclose any relationship and (2) evaluate the candidate by the same standards applied to other candidates.

This portion of the law applies to all public officials, including members of the school committee, even if there is no family relationship involved.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would like to address the subject of the proposed scheduling of the high school for the coming school year. A seven period, six day cycle schedule has been proposed by the principal and approved by the school committee. This means that for a five credit course, the student would meet with the teacher five days out of the six day cycle. Thus, instead of having 180 instructional periods during the school year, the student will have only 150 instructional periods. While the length of each class will be extended from 42 minutes to 50 minutes, the increase in the length of a period hardly compensates for the loss of 30 class periods.

One wonders what is the advantage of the proposed schedule. Will students whose attention span rarely extend to 42 minutes learn more in 50 minutes? How will the teacher make up for the 30 class periods which are lost? Will the teacher teach 1.2 lessons in each class period in order to cover the same material?

It is quite possible to retain the eight period, five day cycle that we had this year and to lengthen class time to 47 minutes by eliminating homeroom and having two lunch periods instead of three. There seems, however, to be an objection to students having more than a half hour to go to the cafeteria, stand in line to get their lunch, eat it, and then return to the next class. Must we teach our children to bolt their food?

In the last week of school, I have heard of many of the drawbacks of the proposed scheduling, ranging from lack of vital double lab periods in science to less than 50 percent of the students choosing a particular course of study actually being scheduled into it. The other 50 percent will have to take potluck.

I believe it is time for the parents of Wilmington to pay close attention to whether their child is, in fact, being short-changed by this new scheduling, and to whether their child is, in fact, going to be scheduled into the courses of their choice. Change for change's sake is not necessarily good, particularly when it does not serve the needs of the students.

Dear Larz:

This is a lesson on how to treat town officials, from the "School of Buzz."

The first step is to pick an official appointed by your predecessor (thanks Sterling). Then you let him work for free. After a couple of years you watch his fellow board members elect him chairman. All the while this man is doing a heck of a job. He gives up a lot of his own time to help the citizens of Wilmington.

When this man doesn't do a good puppet act you decide you're not sure about him. So after he gives 11 years to the town you decide to appoint an administrator to his board. When this man applies for the position you tell him he isn't qualified to hold this $25,000 a year job. He is only good for free work.

So you hire a woman who does an excellent puppet act. Then you let the man continue to give of himself, which he does, for another year or so. Why? because he is concerned for the town. Then when he comes up for reappointment you realize that you could probably find another puppet impersonator to replace him. So you send him a letter telling him he is not reappointed and thanking him for 12 years of service. No! An explanation is not included.

If you need a review of this lesson call the ex-chairman of the conservation commission, Chet Bruce. He learned the lesson first hand.

Signed,
No Name
(For fear of losing my town job)

Zukas addresses issue of conflict of interest

The issue of conflict of interest on the school committee was raised by Bridget Zukas in last week's meeting. During a review of minutes of previous executive sessions, Mrs. Zukas addressed fellow school committee member Dr. Michael Thomas.

Mrs. Zukas claimed that because Thomas acknowledged that his wife and the wife of Asst. Supt. Henry Dembowski were second cousins, there could be a potential conflict of interest in any vote which provided financial gain. She said she would be "on the alert" during any vote concerning Dembowski.

Mrs. Zukas told the board that she had spoken with Stuart Kaufman of the State Ethics Commission, who said that Thomas should not use "undue influence" or show "unwarranted favoritism" toward Dembowski when voting. Mrs. Zukas said she was concerned about votes taken on such issues as Dembowski's contract and the superintendency, should Dembowski make to the final round of candidates.

Sixth grader honored for wheelchair invention

by Arlene Surprenant

Jeff McManus, who just finished the sixth grade at the North Intermediate School, has been recognized by Volunteers for Medical Engineering Inc (VME) for his design of a special wheelchair to aid handicapped individuals.

As part of a Project Enterprise unit on inventions last year, Jeff created a chair with an arm that can lift the wheelchair off the ground so the owner can reach high places. The chair also has arm extensions to reach books or utensils and a voice command box.

VME published Jeff's letter about his invention and a drawing of the wheelchair in its recent newsletter. Jeff also received a letter of commendation thanking him for thinking of other youngsters with disabilities.

According to his Project Enterprise instructor Peggy Mar, she encouraged Jeff to send his design to VME "because it showed ingenuity and, above all, concern for people with disabilities."

Municipal Power Plant for Wilmington?

Is there to be a municipal power plant, on an emergency basis, for Wilmington?

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, meeting on June 23, with the sewer and water commissioners, made such a suggestion, in a reply to a joke.

When the new Eddie Sargent Water Plant opens, in a few months, there will be four water plants in Wilmington equipped with emergency electric generating power. Possibly as a result of this the commissioners have been quipping that they are the "light, water & sewer" commissioners. One of them, jokingly, made the remark in the meeting with Buzz.

Buzz took it seriously. It might be a good idea, he said, if the town hall, police and fire station, and the water and sewer department buildings were hooked up to an emergency power network. Such a network could be useful, he said, in the case of a disaster to the regular electric supply for Wilmington.

Murphy, Ouellette receive Rotary scholarships

The Rotary Club of Wilmington has established two scholarships, each of $4,000 value, for high ranking graduating Wilmington students who have made an outstanding record in their school during the past year. The money, to be donated each year, will be in addition to the $2,000 which has been presented each year recently, to top Wilmington students of Wilmington High School and of Shawsheen Tech High School, four scholarships of $500 each.

Jeffrey Murphy of Gunderson Road and Kevin Ouellette of Allen Park Drive were each presented $4,000 at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club of Wilmington on June 8. The presentations were by President Ed Nash and Past President Charles W. Doucette. Bill Fay, scholarships awards member of Rotary, told of the honors received by the two students.

Murphy, who has been a Junior Rotarian, is a member of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra. As a member of the GYBSO, he was a recent visitor to Japan where the orchestra performed in several cities.

Ouellette was the valedictorian of the graduating class at St. John's Prep, in Danvers.

Murphy is to attend Tufts, and Ouellette will attend Harvard.

President Ed Nash told the audience that the Rotary Club will continue the presentations. It was his hope, he said, that 20 years from now there will be 40 awards winners present, to watch the awards of that year being presented to Wilmington students.

Drug prevention program in second year

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington School System is in its second year of developing a comprehensive alcohol and drug abuse prevention program in all schools. A three year grant from the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs is funding the program.

According to Athletic Director Jim Gillis, who is heading the effort, in the first year, a 22 member task force was formed to help set up the program. Four sub-committees were also formed to deal with such things as the creation of a parents' awareness program and curriculum.

Last year, both the DARE program and the Project Charlie curriculum aimed at enhancing self-esteem were introduced in the elementary schools, Gillis told members of the Wilmington School Committee on Wednesday.

This year the task force is looking to implement the Quest program in grades six through eight. The program is sponsored by the Lions Club and provides a sequential self-esteem curriculum.

Next year, explained Gillis, the task force will introduce the CASPAR program to grades nine through 12.

Supt. Robert Horan praised the task force and the principals and teachers who have supported its efforts and given up some Saturdays in order to train for the drug prevention program.

School committee reorganization tabled

The reorganization of the Wilmington School Committee has been tabled indefinitely to allow the board to take up other matters.

At last week's meeting, the motion to table until a member brought the issue up again at a later meeting, passed in a four to one vote.

The next scheduled meeting of the school committee is August 10.

Gym dedication set for fall

The dedication of the Wilmington High School gymnasium to the memory of Lawrence Cushing is tentatively slated to take place either in the beginning of September or during October's Homecoming Weekend.

Athletic Director Jim Gillis told members of the school committee last week he had been waiting for display cases to be installed and the foyer in the gym to be complete before moving ahead with the dedication ceremony.

Gillis and Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski are in charge of plans for the ceremony. They expect to send out personal invitations to local officials and to make the ceremony as dignified as possible.

As school athletic director and recreation director, Cushing served as a gym teacher and friend to youngsters in all the Wilmington schools for some 30 years. He died in 1984.

Oakridge Common funds denied

The Oakridge Common condominium project has been denied funding by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency. Proponents Joseph and Gloria Raetano had applied for monies for their 16 unit development through the Homeownership Opportunity Program this spring. The Raetanos were told by the state that their project does not meet state criteria.

The project, which had been slated for a small parcel owned by Raetano's mother off, Oakridge Circle, had stirred up the opposition of neighbors because of its size and other impacts which abutters felt would negatively affect their neighborhood.

Sudden layoffs angers teachers aid

by Arlene Surprenant

One teacher's aide in the Wilmington system expressed anger Monday that eight para professionals, some with eight years experience, were given sudden notice last Thursday that their services would no longer be required. The para professionals are all aids in the special needs department.

Though School Supt. Robert Horan disagrees with the number of aids cut and said the para professionals "have known for months that the cuts were coming," Linda Scifo of Hopkins Street maintains that the only notice she and others received was a verbal one by Special Needs Director Cleo Fredette. And, she claimed, neither Fredette nor members of the Wilmington School Committee knew about the layoffs ahead of time.

"I contacted each member of the school committee and they had no idea whatsoever," Scifo told the Town Crier. She said she was very disturbed at the way the aides were notified of their dismissal. She added that the order was issued by Horan.

"He made the decision and we can't even address this until the next (school) committee meeting August 10," Scifo said.

When contacted, Horan explained that three aides and one resource room teacher were cut because of budgetary considerations and the proposed layoffs were mentioned during budget talks last winter. He said an additional two aides were laid off to allow administrators to hire certified teachers as tutors to fill those positions. Though the para professionals worked well, said Horan, having more qualified individuals in those positions seemed "preferable."

Horan told the Town Crier the final decision over who to dismiss was made at the end of the school year and rested with other administrators. He added there's a good chance some of the aids could be rehired to fill other vacancies in the system.

Library's reading program a 'Summer Safari'

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington children are invited to join the trek to Wilmington Memorial Library to sign up for the Safari Summer reading program. Sign-up began last Friday and will continue throughout the summer.

The program, which is sponsored jointly by the Wilmington Reading Department and the staff of the public library, is meant to encourage summer reading and regular visits to the library.

Librarians Sarah Rueter and Susan MacDonald have formulated a program which includes movies, flannelboard stories, contests, arts and crafts workshops, "Lucky Reader" drawings, and various other activities. They have put together an attractive reading kit which explains the program and shows how to record visits to the library and books read. Each time a child visits the library, his or her folder will be stamped with the picture of a jungle animal.

The Children's Reading Room has been transformed into a jungle atmosphere containing wild animal pictures, mosquito netting and colorful draped cloths, and exotic parrots hung from the ceiling representing each child in the program.

During the summer, Tuesdays from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. will be reserved for special movies and Thursdays have been set aside for arts and crafts activities. These will include bookmaking, puppetry, animal cracker crafts, and the creation of peanut critters. Stories from Rudyard Kipling will be read aloud to youngsters on Wednesdays from 11 to 11:30 a.m.

In September, youngsters in each elementary school will participate in a culminating "Safari Reading Celebration." At this time, certificates and special bookmarks will be distributed and books will be awarded to Safari Readers of the Week.

Tewksbury Police get new firing range

Take aim

Police Chief John Mackey lets loose on a target with his .38 cal. snub nose pistol.

by Frank Bonfilio and Steve Weissberger
The Tewksbury police have been sharpening their marksmanship skills beginning this week at the newly revamped firing range.

The range is located on town land off Court Street, near the town well site.

Chief instructor of the range Sergeant Paul Johnson, said the town has had the range for about twenty years, but it became run down. With the help of the DPW they fixed up the old site with four truck loads of hot top and bark mulch. Sgt. Johnson had high praise for the DPW, especially for head foreman John Kane.

Johnson also stated that the police helped out in the makeover and that one of the officers built the target stands and barriers.

The range has ten target lanes, which have paved walk-ways down to the target, each walk way has a portable barrier to create different types of shooting scenarios, and each lane is marked at 50 yards, 25 yards, 15 yards, 5 yards, and three yards.

Behind the site there is a 20 foot tall hill with trees and a fence, so no one could accidentally ride a dirt bike or walk onto the range. Johnson said the range is more convient than going to the Camp Curtis army post in Wakefield where the police used to practice.

Instructor Paul Ringwood and Sgt. Johnson had to go to an FBI instructor's course for one week in Fort Devens in Ayer to qualify as instructors. They have to take the course once a year, Johnson said.

Both the firing course and target practice are mandated by the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Council and shoots are held four times a year.

The officers were shooting 240 rounds of .38 caliber ammunition, ten rounds of magnum 00 buckshot and two rifled deer slugs each.

The practice lasts for a total of four days, two eight-hour days and two four-hour night shoots.

Johnson said that approximately $4,000 worth of ammunition was fired on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Chief Mackey scores his partners target.

Officer Sonny Pappas gets ready to take aim at the target.

Fire!

Tewksbury police blast away as they test out the new firing range. The officers are using plywood barricades to simulate shooting from windows or car doors.

'Honorable Board' has a busy evening

It was the first time in memory that anyone had ever addressed the Wilmington Board of Appeals as "The Honorable Board." That happened just before 9 p.m. June 28, as a busy evening was drawing to a close.

The speaker was Louis A. Ryan of the Right-of-Way Division of the DPW of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He was appearing in the case where K. J. Miller of 106 West Street. Miller was asking for a variance for his building. Miller wanted the front yard to remain the same, and to add an addition in back.

Ryan explained that "We made this hardship" - "we" being the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The Commonwealth is relocating West Street. It will soon construct a new West Street.

"In my 13 years on this board" said MacDonald, "this is the first time that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has ever sent anyone to our board, to explain a case."

"I'm going to send a letter to your boss!"

"Yes," chimed up another member of the board "And he called us an 'honorable board!'"

Ken Miller was granted his variance, with no loss of time. It was the 14th case the Board of Appeals had heard that night.

A different case was an appeal by Paul Godzyk to construct a house on a lot at 11 Forest Street, near Aldrich Road. John Callan was the attorney, and all the neighbors were present, in opposition. Callan had a Land Court plan dating back to 1925 for the 6200 square foot lot. For many years it had been used for a trailer home, by a lady now deceased.

Callan was asking for the right to construct a home 20 by 40 feet, with 15 foot sidelines. The land, Callan said, was in an "R10" zone.

Neighbors, led by Dennis Savitsk, supplied reasons why no house should be constructed on the site. Savitsk pointed out that a decision of five or six years previously had outlawed the site for a home.

Callan pointed out that there were several other lots in the area of about the same size. A recent letter was produced from the building inspector, ordering that the lot in question be cleaned up.

The Board of Appeals turned down the case.

Joseph Chinn, 17 Chestnut St., lives on a lot which is triangular in shape, with a long narrow area behind his house. He wanted to have a two story addition in back, a family room downstairs, and a bedroom upstairs. It would be within the required side yard. The appeal was granted, but Chinn may not build any closer than 10 feet to the sideline.

The case of Richard White of 42 Fairmeadow Rd., did not get solved. Mrs. White made the appearance.

The family has two cars, which one member of the board gladly noted were "american" cars. They seek to build a garage within 10 feet of the sideline. Mrs. White was unable to show what the exact distance would be.

The board took the case under advisement. Mrs. White must show up on July 12, with the site "exactly" on a plan.

Dick Stuart of Northeastern Development will have to wait a few weeks for an answer to his appeal. He wants to erect a 3200 square foot building, two stories, off Lowell Street, and at Bay Road.

Stuart had opposition from neighbors who live further from Lowell Street. They were there to protect their children from traffic.

Most of the lot which Stuart wants to use is zoned commercially. He wants to have the first floor for parking and the second floor for office space, 1600 feet each.

During the discussion of traffic and children it was brought out that half a dozen years ago there waits a Board of Appeals decision against traffic through the area, from Woburn Street to Lowell Street, or otherwise. Bruce MacDonald said that this would be restated, in the decision.

But no decision was made. The case was continued for two weeks.

Elderly at risk in hot weather

Those lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer can be very relaxing and enjoyable, but summer heat can also make people, tired, uncomfortable, and even sick.

Temperatures above 90 degrees can be a real hazard particularly to the elderly, or persons who suffer from chronic illness.

As a person gets older, they are less able to respond to long exposure to heat or cold. "Their internal thermal regulating mechanism doesn't work as well as it used to," said Paula. Koppel, RN, GNP, gerontological clinical specialist, at Winchester Hospital. "They don't realize that they are as hot as they are."

During hot and humid weather a buildup in body heat can cause heat stroke or heat exhaustion in the elderly. This is especially true of those with heart and circulatory disease, stroke, or diabetes.

Heat places a strain on a person's heart and blood vessels as the body struggles to maintain normal temperature in hot weather. If the temperature hovers at 90 degrees or above for several days and the humidity is high, the chances of getting sick from the heat are even greater.

The body sends out warning signals when it is struggling with the heat. Most people feel hot and bothered during hot weather, and many feel tired or lose their appetite. When these symptoms persist they should seek medical advice.

"When it is excessively hot the best precaution against heat related illness is to remain indoors in a cool place," said Koppel. "If your home is not cool enough, you might go to a senior center, library, movie theater, or an air conditioned public area during the hottest hours of the day."

Kellie Barrett, business administration; Mark Bartnick, liberal arts; David Bradbury, criminal justice, high honors; Marjorie Burke, office education; Judith Cassim, business administration, high honors; June Foley, nursing, honors; Donald Gorski, electro-mechanical drafting; Jeffrey Greco, business administration;

Committee adopts staggered schedule

The Wilmington School Committee adopted a staggered time schedule, which will have Wilmington High starting five minutes earlier next fall, in order to relieve overcrowding on school buses. The option was recommended by Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski at last week's school committee meeting. Dembowski also recommended the committee continue its policy of having buses pick up kindergarten children at their homes.

In other business, committeemen unanimously favored a change in the sixth grade marking system to letter grades for all major subjects and either unsatisfactory or satisfactory grades in minor subjects. Supt. Robert Horan, who recommended the change, said it would make it easier for sixth graders, who are in a transition year, to make the honor roll.

Sewer hookup a possibility for car wash

Bernard Grodzinsky of the Wilmington Car Wash, Main Street, Wilmington, may soon have a hookup to the Wilmington sewer, located across the railroad tracks from his car wash.

Some weeks ago Mr. Grodzinsky asked the Wilmington Water & Sewer Commissioners if he could, in concert with other firms, have such a hookup. At the present time the commissioners have no plans for a sewer in the area.

Grodzinsky was told that there is a fund in the state house to assist in such cases, but at least half the cost, he was told, would have to be paid by the persons or firms requesting the sewer hookup.

On June 23 Grodzinsky and engineer George Carlson reported that they have almost completed arrangements. About seven local businesses have said they would join. The two men exhibited a plan for a sewer to run along Main Street, from Cross Street to the O'Brien and Feeley tire shop - the former Wallace Motors. Up to $305,000 is available.

Their application must be countersigned by the town manager, and must be filed by June 30. The firms and any residents who take part, the two men were told, will have to pay the town its regular fee to become a part of the Wilmington sewer service. The residential and commercial fee is $1,000. The industrial fee is $5,000.

Wilmington senior topics

Successful social

Last Friday's therapeutic social was truly a very enjoyable day for all who attended. We compliment all for obeying the rules set by us when we are traveling by bus.

It is our hope to eliminate parking at the Swain School before we have our next bus social. With the start of our new fiscal year July 1, the council will be meeting with the superintendent of public works on enlarging the parking lot. When completed we will be able to park all cars at the center.

Fair Committee

The Arts and Crafts Fair Committee are signing up for the seniors July therapeutic social. This is their annual all day picnic, held on the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks picnic grounds July 21. The day begins at 10 a.m. with coffee and muffins. At noon the barbecue chicken dinner with all the trimmings will be served. All Wilmington residents 60 years of age or older may attend this all day affair. You are required to sign up at the office of the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center. A $1.00 non-refundable deposit will be required to help the committee defray the cost of the day.

This is one of three socials every year paid for completely by the seniors themselves through money realized by the Arts and Crafts. Throughout the year seniors work hard sewing, crocheting, knitting and making articles of craft, to be sold at the fair. They work at home or in the craft class Wednesday mornings at the center. Other seniors collect a number of gifts for the raffle held at the fair. Another group of seniors works on tables or cooks and serves meals the day of the fair. The rest of us attend the fair taking with us all our relatives and friends. So, this is your day, enjoy it. You earned it.

Council meets July 13

The July Council on Aging

meeting will be held at the Senior Citizen Center July 13, the second Monday of July beginning at 1:30 p.m. The first Monday is on July 4, a holiday. The center will be closed. The minibus will not be on the road so please make appointments accordingly.

Parking

During the week of the July 4 festivities, seniors may park at the Buzzell Senior Center. It will be a little easier for you if you wish to leave the area before the evening programs end.

Be careful in hot spells

We as older persons should be aware of the dangerous strain our bodies, especially our hearts are placed under when we experience long term hot spells. When the weatherman predicts an oppressive day with temperatures in the 90's and you do not have a fan or an air conditioner, if you have a car go to the Senior Center. If you do not have transportation call the center. We will have you picked up by the minibus. The Buzzell Senior Citizen Center is air conditioned and handicapped accessible throughout.

Most victims elders

Most the victims of heat stress are elders. We can reduce these numbers if all of us check on friends and neighbors. Please do not ignore a warning sign of heat stress. A loss of appetite and the feeling of complete lack of energy are signs of heat stress. We have more activities at the center to keep you occupied. Along with a large number of seniors to socialize with.

Lunch resumes July 5

The summer lunch program will resume July 5 at the West Intermediate School. The meal will be served at 11:30 a.m. Remember to call Louise if you are confined to your home and want a meal delivered or if you want to eat at the school. Call 657-7595 or 658-2258.

Growing-up series for teens at Regional Health Center

The Community Health Education Department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington will offer the following "Growing Up Series" for teens in July.

Growing up female: teaches 10 to 13-year-old girls about menstruation, female anatomy, hygiene, and changes that occur in females and males during adolescence.

This course will be offered Tuesday, July 12, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Growing up male: teaches 11 to 14-year-old boys about changes boys can expect during puberty, hygiene, and understanding growth and development in males and females.

females.

This course will be offered Tuesday, July 19, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Taught by Bridget M. McCane-Duerr who holds a B.S. degree in health education and has extensive experience working with teenagers. Also assisting will be Mary Ann Breen, health educator who holds a B.S. degree, with a special background working with teenagers.

Pre-registration is a requirement for both programs. Please call 657-3910, ext. 567 for additional information and registration form.

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

Summer computer camp at Shawsheen Tech

Registration is now being accepted for a limited number of openings in the sixth annual Shawsheen Tech Computer Camp to be held in July and August at Shawsheen Tech.

Beginner, intermediate and advanced classes will be offered for students who have completed grades three to nine with a computer terminal for every student. Equipment includes IBM, Apple IIE, G.S. IIC and Digital, VAX-11/780 equipment. Students will be exposed to graphics, logo, keyboarding, and word processing, including Basic, Appleworks, Multiscribe and newsroom programs.

Campers will have the opportunity to do more than stand up and stretch for a break from computer time. American Red Cross swimming instruction will be offered at the Tech pool with water games and free swimming time included.

Physical education is also part of the varied program, with campers participating in soccer, lacrosse, hockey, volleyball and weight training.

There are openings in both Cycle I (July 5-23) and Cycle II (July 25-August 12). Each session meets from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Camp fee is $150 for a three week session with snacks of milk and fresh fruit provided daily. To register, call Shawsheen Tech at 667-2111, and ask for Jack Bowen or Joyce Coache.

For more information, contact University College, Northeastern University at 437-2400.

Relaxation Training at Health Center

Are you too busy to take care of yourself? Do you feel tired or a lack of energy? Do you have high blood pressure or is stress your problem?

Relaxation training can make a positive difference on one's life. It is the best way to manage stress and is a proven non-medical approach to treating high blood pressure. Relaxation techniques help in weight reduction, stopping smoking and becoming more assertive. A variety of relaxation techniques will be taught in a fun, practical and informational workshop at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington on Wednesday, July 13, 20, 27 and August 3 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Techniques taught by the instructor, Bridget McCane-Duerr, community health educator, will include progressive muscle relaxation, guided imagery, visualization, breathing exercises, relaxation response and autogenics. A relaxation training cassette tape and handouts will be included in the course. Participation is limited to 12 persons per group. Pre-registration is required by calling 657-3910, ext. 567.

The Regional Health Center is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

Summer story program at Patten Library

The Patten Public Library will begin a summer program for preschool children ages three to five. The story hour will be held for six weeks on Thursday mornings at 10:15 a.m. beginning July 7. The story hour is limited to 25 children who must be residents of Tewksbury and three years old. Proof of age is required.

Telephone pre-registration will be held Friday, July 1, beginning at 10 a.m. For more information, call the library at 851-6071.

Annual show at the Arts Center

The Wilmington Council for the Arts will hold its annual show on Saturday, July 2 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Arts Center (old town hall).

Many artists from around the area will exhibit their work. Paintings done in oils, watercolors, pastels and mixed media as well as sculptures, photos and other work may be viewed.

Several craftspeople will have their handmade creations for sale. You may select from stoneware, jewelry, hand painted items, stained glass, wreaths and many more. Everyone is welcome to browse and view.

Plantar Warts and Laser Surgery?

Consult Northeast Podiatric!

The swelling on your foot aches or burns. You suspect it is a plantar wart, but the hustle bustle of your life doesn't allow you the time for a series of medical appointments. Then too, you're not quite sure what type of a doctor you should see.

Spare yourself further anxiety. Come to the one professional who specializes in all aspects of foot care—the Podiatrist. Northeast Podiatric doctors have been using laser technology since mid-1986, for the removal of warts and other skin lesions of the foot. One treatment with laser surgery eliminates the problem over 85 percent of the time, while traditional methods are effective only 50 percent of the time. Post-operative discomfort and physical limitations also are reduced.

When your feet hurt, let it be our headache.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending June 28, Wilmington police officers responded to 15 accidents, 42 alarms, made 13 arrests and two protective custody detentions.

Seven disturbances and two domestic problems were quieted, three alarms were investigated along with five larcenies, two break and entries, and three assault and batteries. Medical assistance was rendered twice.

Eleven incidents of suspicious activity were checked out, one trespassing complaint, four complaints involving trailbikes, two threat complaints and two traffic complaints were logged.

Seven incidents of vandalism are still under investigation. Three restraining orders were issued; officers responded to nine lockouts and five fireworks complaints.

Arrests

Wednesday morning Officer Larry Juergens arrested two people in separate incidents. At two o'clock, he arrested Leang Pen of Rockaway Street, Lynn after stopping him in Main Street. Pen was charged with operating a motor vehicle after suspension of his driver's license.

Later the same morning Officer Juergens arrested Christopher Bionvino of Park Street, Wakefield after stopping him on Main Street near the square. Bionvino was charged with operating a motor vehicle with an altered inspection sticker. Both men were bailed for appearances in Woburn District Court.

Around 6 p.m. Wednesday, Officer Jim White, while on traffic patrol on Route 62, arrested Amos Boswell of Julian Street Dorchester on the basis of a capitol police warrant. Boswell was later turned over to a capitol police officer.

Late Wednesday night Officer Steve LaRivee arrested a Saugus man at Main Street and Richmond Road. David Harbison of Roundhill Street, Saugus was charged with operating a motor vehicle after his license had been suspended. He was bailed for an appearance in Woburn District Court.

Sgt. Duffy and Officer Richter traveled to Bedford Friday morning to arrest Scott Severin of Pupkis Road, Tewksbury on the basis of a Wilmington default warrant. He was bailed for an appearance in Woburn Court.

Three people were arrested Friday afternoon as a result of the investigation of an alleged assault and battery and robbery of money from a woman in an incident that occurred at 200-O Andover Street.

Robert Berninger, 181 Lowell St., Andover was arrested at the scene at 12:30 p.m. by Deputy Chief Nally and Sgt. Palmer after a brief investigation based on complaints filed by the victim.

The young woman was treated and released from Winchester Hospital for multiple bruises on her body. Around 1:30 p.m., Nadine DeSimone, 181 Lowell St., Andover was arrested at the station after she appeared to inquire about Berninger. Both people were charged with assault and battery on the victim and unarmed robbery of over $500 in cash. Warrants were obtained for a third suspect charging the same offenses.

At 6 p.m. Friday Sharon Guernelli of Ash Street, Reading turned herself in to the station was processed on the same charges. All three were placed on bail of $200 cash pending their appearance in Woburn District Court Tuesday June 28. Also participating in the investigation were Sgt. Shepard, Insp. Jepson, Off. Jon Shepard and Mrs. Perry.

William Perry, 22 of Oakridge Circle, Wilmington was arrested around 2 a.m. Sunday by Officer Jepson on an Andover default warrant. Perry was bailed for an appearance in Lawrence District Court.

CITIZENS OF WILMINGTON TAKE NOTICE

YOU SHOULD KNOW ...

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) is seriously considering a site in Wilmington on which to build a sludge-treatment plant as part of its court-ordered mandate to clean up Boston harbor. The MWRA will make its final site choices very soon. The towns of Wilmington, Andover, North Reading, Tewksbury and Billerica will be the most directly affected.

"SLUDGE" is made up primarily of human waste, other organic material, cancer-causing chemicals and dangerous heavy metals.

YOU SHOULD BE CONCERNED ...

Sludge treatment is not an exact science. It can result in:

- Ground water contamination
- Air pollution
- Environmental damage
- Foul odors

ARE YOU CONCERNED?

We'll make sure that MWRA gets your message if you send your name, address, phone number and your comments / questions:

Young authors display creative talent

Film maker Snakes was the subject of a filmstrip produced and shown by fifth grader Brian Maynard.

of each student reading his or her own work and supervised the creation of filmstrips to illustrate the words. The filmstrips were shown to family and friends last week.

The project was a learning experience for those who participated.

Lisa Houle is in Mrs. Walsh's fifth grade class. She chose to call her book on good nutrition Healthy Foods from A to Z.

"A lot of families today eat junk food. It should be recognized that a lot of kids need to eat more healthy foods," said Lisa, explaining why she chose her subject.

"The project was fun and it was really easy to organize. I learned more about different foods. I had never heard of a quince before," she added.

To find out more about the various foods in her book, Lisa used encyclopedias and library books.

Justin Yentile is in Mrs. Keating's fifth grade class. His book, Insects from A to Z, was written with Jimmy Whitebone and is a compilation of interesting facts about insects.

Justin claimed drawing the pictures on the filmstrip was "hard" and at least one student didn't finish the project. But he felt during the entire process he learned a lot.

"It taught us how to write good things and gave us experience in doing big projects," he said. He too researched his subject in the library.

Copies of all books and the accompanying tapes can be found in the Shawsheen School library.

Backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

As if the never ending heat and dryness were not enough to cause area gardeners serious problems, here comes the annual hordes of insects, intent on devouring whatever has survived the unusual weather conditions.

This has not been an easy gardening year, and that is the understatement of the month. All we can do is keep plugging away and hope that eventually we will receive some substantial rains. The wild thunder and lightning storm of June 22 produced only three-eighths of an inch of rain, barely enough to moisten the top two inches of soil.

In terms of insect damage, late June through mid August is the toughest six weeks for flower and vegetable growers. If, for whatever reasons, you choose not to dust or spray your plants during the next six weeks, you can expect to lose between 25 and 40 percent of your crops, depending on the extent of infestation.

I am not philanthropic enough to be willing to share my vegetables with insects and small animals. There was a time (going back 15 years or so) when I sprayed my garden once a week with Sevin from mid June through August. The results were satisfactory in the sense that I was losing virtually nothing to insects. I was meticulous about following mixing instructions to the letter, and always sprayed late in the evening to avoid killing bees or other pollinators. Gradually I have backed away from regular preventive maintenance spraying because (1) I was becoming concerned about accidentally inhaling the dust or spray, and (2), I was having increasing misgivings about using toxic insecticides at all. As a result, I have experienced a slight drop off in production, but I feel better about this less intensive attitude toward insect control.

Even though the manufacturers of sprays and dusts insist that, when applied carefully and according to their directions we will do no damage to ourselves or to the ecology in general, I now feel that toxic pesticides should be used only as a last resort and under very controlled conditions. I no longer encourage the use of Sevin in the garden even though it is not carcinogenic and has a short (six to seven days) effective period. This is because human nature being what it is, most gardeners insist on applying insecticides at their convenience, usually while the sun is shining and the honeybees are doing their necessary work. Sevin is highly toxic to bees, and I hate to think how many bees have been accidentally destroyed over the last dozen or 15 years by the careless use of Sevin.

For those gardeners who are using Sevin, I can only encourage you to apply it after 7:30 p.m., so that the bees are safely back in their hives. When they venture forth the next day, they will avoid direct contact with whatever has been sprayed the evening before, often delaying pollination of some flowering vegetables including beans and squash.

Such is the thrust of the organic gardening movement that a whole line of non toxic insect control agents has appeared on garden center shelves in the last two or three years. Although not as efficient as the harsher "chemical" pesticides, they are nevertheless a giant step in the right direction, and well worth trying. One tried and proven "organic" insect deterrent is rotenone, a plant derived insecticide found to be harmless to birds and animals, unless ingested in very large amounts. A light dusting of rotenone powder is an excellent way to discourage rabbits and woodchucks from raiding your beans, squash and pumpkin plants. It will also ward off many, but not all, leaf chewing insects, including Mexican bean beetles, although care must be taken to dust the underside of the leaves as well.

Next week we will direct our attention to specific insect pests, including squash borers, aphids, bean beetles, potato beetles, corn borers and earworms, and Japanese beetles.

For further questions or information, my phone number is 658-5852.

Tara Buckley becomes assistant to Miceli

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Wilmington, Tewksbury) has announced the addition of Ms. Tara K. Buckley to his Beacon Hill staff in Boston. Ms. Buckley began working as a legislative assistant to Miceli upon her May graduation from Regis College in Weston. Tara is originally from Ridgefield, Ct.

Ms. Buckley graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in political science with a minor in communications. While at Regis, she took part in many activities including the Political Science and Communications Clubs. Tara was also a Residence Hall Council member and a Tower Society member.

During her years at Regis, Tara also worked at the college, professionally, as an assistant with the Office of Public Relations and as an admissions assistant to the Office of Admissions.

In addition to her many responsibilities at Regis, the energetic Ms. Buckley also worked as an intern for Governor Michael S. Dukakis' press office on Beacon Hill.

In her capacity as a legislative assistant to Rep. Miceli, Tara will be responsible for constituent and legislative services. Tara is currently assisting Rep. Miceli with his work toward defeating the proposed sludge dump in Wilmington. She has attended all the hearings relative to the MWRA actions in the community and will continue to specialize in state matters that affect the community.

Need help?

Todd Brissenden, first class lineman and chairman of the Safety Committee with the Reading Municipal Light Department, points to the new signs which were placed on all Reading Municipal Light Department trucks. The sign reads: "Need Help? Stop Us! This vehicle carries two-way emergency communications." According to General Manager Len Rucker, the signs have been designed to alert motorists, pedestrians or anyone else in trouble that the RMLD vehicle can be used to get them assistance in a hurry via the two-way radio.

"Help" signs placed on RMLD trucks

"We hope to be known as your friendly neighborhood utility," Reading Municipal Light Department General Manager Len Rucker said in announcing the new 'help' signs which have been placed on all RMLD vehicles.

According to Rucker, the signs read "Need Help? Stop us! This vehicle carries two-way emergency communications." The purpose of the signs is to offer motorists and pedestrians a refuge if they should encounter any problems which require emergency assistance.

"We hope the bulk of the requests are to assist motorists on routine break-downs, but should we encounter a real life threatening emergency our vehicles and their drivers can handle the problem simply by making a radio call," Rucker said. "Parents should also advise their children that if they are in any danger and an RMLD truck is close by, they should seek help from the employee. The steadfast rule of not going into a car or truck should be adhered to. Our personnel have been instructed to remain with the child until the appropriate help arrives."

The signs have been placed strategically on all RMLD vehicles and can be seen day or night.

Olympics, NFL await brothers

Athanasias' dynamic duo

To the Athanasia family of Wilmington, the coming months could become known for all time as the Summer of '88. Before it ends, one son could be in the Olympics, another in the NFL.

Chris Athanasia, a Yale University sophomore and an all-American javelin thrower, will compete in the 1988 U.S. Olympic Trials July 15-23 in Indianapolis, Indiana. On June 3 he took second at the NCAA championships with a throw of 244 feet, two inches.

While Chris tries for the Olympics, his brother Dean will grunt through an NFL training camp, looking for a spot on the Los Angeles Rams' roster.

Dean, who caught 41 passes for Yale as a senior tight end last fall, signed with the Rams as a free agent after setting a school record with 112 career receptions.

Chris, a 6-5, 182-pounder, was the top American finisher in the javelin at the NCAA championships. His second place showing was the best for any Yale athlete since Frank Shorter won the 10,000 meters in 1969. Shorter went on to win the marathon at the 1972 Olympics.

Chris, an all-state thrower and class salutatorian at Wilmington

High School, will warm up for the trials by competing in the Athletic Congress (TAC) championships June 16-18 in Tampa, Florida.

Chris owns the IC4A, Heptagonal and Yale javelin records. On May 22 he got off a career best of 246-1 at the IC4A championships at Yale, falling three feet short of the American collegiate record.

Chris, a quarterback prospect in football, took first this season at the Athletes Equity Challenge meet at Stanford and at the Connecticut Intercollegiate. He finished second at the Penn Relays.

Both Athanasia brothers were members of the National Honor Society at Wilmington High School.

Dean ranked ninth in his class academically while leading the ice hockey team to a state title and making All-Merrimack Valley Conference in both hockey and football.

Dean, a 6-3, 225 pounder, made all-Ivy League twice at Yale and demolished John Spagnola's school mark of 88 career catches. His best day came against Connecticut in 1986 when he hauled in nine passes.

Chris, an all-New England quarterback in high school, found time to become a National Merit Scholarship finalist and an Academic All-American.

tryout

Dean Athanasia will be giving the NFL a shot when he tries out with the Los Angeles Rams this summer. Dean broke all the Yale receiving records during his collegiate career.

Olympic
trials

Chris Athanasia hopes to qualify for the United States Olympic team in the javelin. Chris is also a bright quarterback prospect at Yale University.

Wilmington Rec ready for summer

The Wilmington Recreation Department has planned a summer of fun and sun for local youngsters and adults. For more information on the following programs, call 658-4270.

Red Cross swimming lessons (Laurie Buzzell and David Michaud). Ages four and five (clinics), $15 ages six and up (lessons); $30, Silver Lake and Shawsheen Tech. The one week clinics, comprised of five hours of instruction, will be held during the weeks of July 18, 25, August 1 and 8. This program introduces the child to movement and safety in the water.

Lessons for beginners and advanced beginners are held in the two week sessions, with starting dates of July 5, 18 and August 1. Beginner lessons are for ages six-10. Advanced beginner for ages seven through 11 who have their beginner card or who can do the crawl for 25 yards.

Intermediate and swimmer lessons are three weeks in duration. Intermediate, July 5 to 22, is for ages eight through 12 who have their advanced beginner card or who can do the crawl stroke comfortably for 50 yards, dive and tread water for three minutes. Swimmer, July 25 through August 12, is for ages nine to 14 who have their intermediate card or who can swim 100 yards, dive, and tread water for 10 minutes.

Basic rescue and water safety aide (junior lifesaving) is for ages 11 to 15 who have all of the above requirements or who can swim 200 yards, dive and tread water for 10 minutes. Basic rescue runs for two weeks beginning July 5. Anyone age 15 or over who wishes to take advanced lifesaving should call. To sign-up for other programs, register in person Tuesday, June 7 or Wednesday, June 8 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Rec office.

Tiny Tots (Ron Colbert, Linda Dicey and Kerry Sheehan). Age four as of August 31, 1988 through K; $40, three week sessions, Wed., June 29-Tues., July 19 and Wed., July 20-Mon., August 8. This is a social/recreation program for those who have not entered first grade. The four year olds attend in the morning from 9 to 11:30 and the five and six-year-olds in the afternoon from noon until 2:30. There are field trips, class photos, snacks, personal t-shirts, arts and crafts, singing, games, special events and a big bunch of fun! Register any weekday from 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

Playground: Ages six-12, completed first grade, free, m-f, 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., July 6-Fri., Aug. 19. Glen Road Rec area. Have you discovered the Glen Road Recreation area? There are a lot of young people having fun down there thanks to the Rotary Club, DPW and many others.

This traditional program is for youths who just completed any grade between one and six. Parents may register their children on the playground or children may take home the registration form. There are many exciting special events and tournaments as part of this program. This is a good program for volunteer helpers who have completed grades seven, eight and nine. Three leaders and volunteers provide supervision for the children.

Beach: (Ed Woods) Wilmington residents and guests, free; Sat., June 25-closing. The public beach at Silver Lake provides the finest natural recreation resource. Qualified lifeguards supervise the facility from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 7 p.m. Sunday. Come and enjoy the sun and your own sandy beach.

Special needs day camp: Special kids, $15, M-F, 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Wed., June 29-Tues., Aug. 16 at Camp Forty acres.

This day camp is for Wilmington youths with special needs. The program provides a wholesome mixture of outdoor activities, field trips, swimming, games, crafts, singing and campfire fun. Register in the Recreation office beginning Monday, June 6, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Little Red Wagon: (Ron Swasey). Everyone should enjoy this return performance of UNH's Theater Resources for Youth on Thursday, July 14 from 11 a.m. to noon. This lively hour of dramatic entertainment features puppetry, story theatre, music and involvement theatre to delight children of all ages. This production will be held in the Glen Road Pines and is free to the public.

Canoe rental: Ages 12 and up; $3 per hour; $10 per day, Beach hours at Silver Lake. We have canoes available for responsible people to rent at Silver Lake.

Gymnastics: (Ellen Grindler). Ages four through grade three; $20 Tues., and Thurs., July 12-Aug 4 at WHS gym. This program includes boys too, through grade three in co-ed classes. Basic tumbling and gymnastics games are offered. Classes are 2 p.m., pre-school and 3 p.m., grades one through three.

Travel information: (Susan Delaney and Ron Swasey). The travel corner of the Rec office is growing every day. If you are planning a trip this summer for anywhere in New England, Canada or Florida, it may be worth your while to stop by and take a look. Discounts are available.

Wizards complete super season

The Wilmington boys' under 10 II team won its' last two games to wind up the season with a very successful 7-2-1 record.

First, the Wizards defeated a tough Winchester Club in hot, summer-like weather, 4-2. The Wizards scored quickly as David Vitale took a fine pass from Adam Vogel and drove the ball high through the air into the goal with less than one minute played.

Only two minutes later, Chris Sampson stole a Winchester pass and drove another high shot past the opposition goalkeeper.

For several minutes the Wizards pressed the ball deep into the Winchester end. Unfortunately, a combination of hot weather and Wilmington overconfidence soon led to a breakdown in the team defense. Twice quick breakaways by Winchester forwards allowed the Wizards' opponents to tie up the game by the half.

After some extended discussions during halftime, the Wizards came out flying and pressed Winchester into its' own end for most of the second half. Wilmington took the lead when Dennis Torpey scored from the center on a fine assist from Nick Athanassiou. Moments later, David Vitale was able to push the ball in for his second score of the day to sew up the victory for the Wizards.

Last Saturday Wilmington ended its' season on an upbeat note as they defeated Billerica III, 1-0. These two clubs proved to be evenly matched as each team took turns driving up and down the field, with both teams goalkeepers doing excellent work. A penalty kick by Chris Sampson wrapped up a fine spring season for the team. Special mention must be made for goalkeepers Davide Vitale and Adam Vogel, whose hard work preserved the win for the Wizards.

The coaches wish to congratulate all the players for a fine season. Nick Athanassiou, Joey Bamberg, Danny Bennett, Doug Bonnarigo, Tommy Casella, Billy Covino, Scott Griffin, Tommy Heigham, Jay Isberg, Kevin Kacamburas, Chris Kilburn, Matt Mutchler, Buddy Phillips, Chris Sampson, Dennis Torpey, David Vitale, Adam Vogel and David Ward. The coaches would also like to thank the players' parents and the special assistance provided by Bob Maleszyk.

Inter-city baseball

Astros topple Andre Realty, 4-3

In recent inter-city league action, the Wilmington Astros split with Melrose while defeating Andre Realty. Also in a non-league tilt, the Astros lost to Acton to bring their seasonal record to 6-14-1 (4-10-1 in ICL play).

Mon., June 20: The Astros jumped out to a quick 4-0 lead at Melrose in the top of the first, as Steve Indingaro belted a two-run homer and P.J. McCabe and Rich Mugerini knocked in a run apiece.

However, starting hurler Joe Puleo (0-4) was clubbed around for seven Ram runs in one and a third innings. Tim Budrewicz hurled two and two-thirds innings of relief before tiring in the sixth when the Rams scored six times. When the dust had cleared, the Astros suffered their worst defeat of the season, 15-7.

Tue., June 21: Traveling to Acton to play the Muskets in a non-league affair, Mark Bartnick (2-3) turned in a fine pitching performance, allowing nine hits and five runs as the Acton nine defeated the Astros, 5-1. The Astros hit the ball very well in this contest, but to no avail, as the Muskets played errorless ball.

Dave Woods returned to the Wilmington lineup after missing six games, and hit the ball well in his three at bats, showing no ill effects of his thumb injury.

Fri., June 24: Tim Budrewicz (2-2-1) fired a strong six-hitter, and the Astros hit in the clutch to defeat the first place Andre Realty Club, 4-3. Budrewicz hurled shutout ball over the last four innings, while his teammates came from behind with a pair of runs in the last of the seventh with one out to key a big win for the Wilmington club. Chris Wnek paced the Astros hitting attack with three singles.

Sun., June 26: The Astros erupted for eight runs in the last of the first inning aided by three Melrose errors to whip the Rams, 12-4 before the largest home crowd of the season.

Larry Thomas (2-0) pitched his second straight complete game victory, while scattering 12 hits. Paul Matachun (3-4) slammed a solo homer and a bases loaded double, Dave Woods (2-3) belted a three-run homer, and Scott Bolton (2-3) knocked in a pair of runs to pace the Astros' best offensive attack of the season.

Upcoming games

Wednesday, June 29, Athletics vs

Andover, 6 p.m. at the North Intermediate; Thursday, June 30, Astros at DelVecchio's (6 p.m., Somerville); Friday, July 1, Astros vs Wakefield, 6 p.m., at the North Intermediate.

Boston to Provincetown

For the most delightful full day excursion you'll find, enjoy the fun and sun of a cruise to colorful Provincetown aboard the large, comfortable Provincetown II. Her three spacious decks offer open, enclosed and covered areas to insure comfort in all weather.

A sparking galley and live entertainment add to the pleasure of enjoying the sun, sights and sea breeze during the cruise. In Provincetown you can explore the cape's most interesting shops and beautiful beaches. Sign up any weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The date is Wednesday, July 20 and we will leave the Swain School at 8 a.m., returning at 7:30 p.m. Cost is $25 per person.

Discounts

Planning a trip to the Orlando area? The Recreation Department has discounts for a number of attractions in Florida, including Magic Kingdom, Sea World and Busch Gardens. Stop by to see what's available.

Other discounts available are Riverside Park, Canobie Lake Park, Whalen Park and Showcase Cinemas.

Recreation VCR tapes

The Recreation Department has several new vcr tapes to loan to the public at no charge. In addition to fly fishing and canoeing, now available are tapes on Hawaii, the Best of the Caribbean, Baseball the Pete Rose Way, the Soccer Video and Kathy Smith's Winning Workout.

These tapes can be borrowed from the Recreation office at the Town Hall Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Call the Recreation office to see what's available, 658-4270.

Summer programs

The Recreation Department has openings in the following programs - sports clinics, baseball and soccer; tennis, adult and youth class; gymnastics, preschool class and grades one through three. Sign up in the Recreation office between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Summer playground

The grand opening of the 1988 summer recreation playground will take place Wednesday July 6 behind the town hall.

TOWN CRIER, JUNE 29, 1988

This warm weather hub of activities is home for those who have completed first grade but have not completed seventh grade. Volunteer helpers from the seventh, eighth and ninth grades are needed.

The playground program consists of games, sports, arts and crafts, field trips and special events. The program is free of charge. Parents may register their children when they go to the playground. The program will run weekdays from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

outdoors column

We've become the "Indoor Generation"

by Bill Conlon
Where is our species going?

Over the past few centuries we've lost something vital for mankind as a living species, and the loss keeps growing.

We've lost touch with our home planet.

Look at your own life and see if it isn't true.

You sleep the night in a sealed and temperature controlled house. The stars outside are mysterious now, when once they all had names that everyone knew. Without looking out the window, can you state with any surety what phase the moon is in right now. (It's barely past full.)

You cook your breakfast on a stove or in a microwave. Odds are you couldn't cook an edible meal over a genuine wood fire if you had to. Your great grandmother could, but you can't. Hell, you wouldn't even know which kind of wood to gather to make a good cooking fire.

After breakfast, you expose your body to the elements, but only for the brief minute it takes to run to the car. Then you close yourself in a different kind of sealed, temperature controlled device and head off to work.

You might see an animal or two on the way, and the critter might even be alive and not flattened on the pavement. Do you know what sound that critter makes, or what it eats, or where it makes its den? Your grandfather did.

Your working day is spent inside yet another climate-controlled unit, working on God alone knows what. The beach sand that you walked on as a child is now on the desk in front of you, "thinking sand" that is running your life with a keyboard. Only a lucky few get to work close to the earth these days. Seriously, could you grow enough food to survive the winter? It's doubtful.

You might look out the window and see some sort of weather. Did you know it was coming without tuning your TV set to the Weather Channel? Are the clouds full of tales and warnings, or do they just make for pretty sunsets?

All weather is strictly avoided, too. Heaven forbid that you'd ever spend time in anything except clear and warm weather. Why is that? My little daughter had a ball a few days back, running and splashing in the rain. We didn't have the heart to tell her that you're not supposed to enjoy the weather in the latter part of the 20th Century.

The entire globe is being paved without delay or restriction. Whole habitats are falling before the bulldozer and chainsaw daily, most notably in the tropics. Not only are we wiping out places where animals once lived, but we're now starting to learn what gifts some animals have to offer us.

It was recently discovered that a certain type of catfish in the Persian Gulf can help heal injuries. Arab fishermen have known about the fish's abilities for years, but we're just now finding just what sorts of enzymes and compounds are given off by the unusual fish.

How many animals, now extinct, could have given us amazing and irreplaceable medical compounds? How many gifts were wasted in our ignorance? How many more will be eradicated before we learn their gift? We might never know.

The world is full of unbelievable things, but we've grown so callous about our planet that most of us don't even know what's out there. We watch National Geographic on TV with fascination, because we've simply lost touch with the world. Instead of quietly watching a spider spin her web, now we sit and watch it on TV in amazement. And it's been out there for ten thousand years, if we only tried to see it.

Only recently, in the eleventh hour, have we started to change our ways of abuse. For example, the whales are now protected by most peoples of the Earth. Imagine what life might be like if we someday we may learn their slow and graceful language.

Deadly chemicals are no longer poured onto the ground, where they come back to haunt future generations. Rivers are no longer used as open sewers and chemical dumps, or at least we've started moving in the right direction. Abuses remain, and we have a long way to go before we can dip a cup into our rivers again, if ever.

But it's still just a nod or two in the right direction. The noisy few have stopped whale hunting and toxic chemical dumping, but still they meet with resistance. People still pour deadly garbage into rivers, to save the cost of taking the poison to the proper treatment place. And the Japanese have never lost their taste for whale flesh....

So what will happen when we finally lose all touch with Earth? We can't go back, really we can't, to those simpler days before paved streets and electric stoves. When we set forth to fish and hunt, we're only reminiscing about a life that we once led out of necessity. A harder life, sure, but a good one. Contact with the Earth gives peace, and that's something sorely missing in our hectic world today.

Gone are the days of hunting for meat, for survival, and of spending the day under the trees.

Gone are the days when a plow would be turned to avoid a nest of pheasant eggs. Agribusiness can't wait for mere animals.

Gone are walks in the rain.

But how much of our souls have we lost along with it? How much have we given up to conquer our environment.

Someday we may find out, and the cost will be very, very painful.

- Tackle Box -

The Greater Lowell Fly Fishers tournament to benefit the March of Dimes was a whopping success this past weekend. Some 736 anglers signed up for the event, a turnout of 104 more than last year. The Merrimack River was jammed with boats, from the New Hampshire line to the falls at Pawtucketville, and anglers lined the banks from there downstream to Duck Island.

The two-day tournament also had some good catches brought in for the prize pool. Enough carp and bass were taken to claim all ten money prizes, but only four of the ten pickerel prizes went out. I'll only provide the top three places in each category, since I'd need an extra page to list all the winners.

Top carp, and $500, went to Mike Rothwell of Lowell for a 19-pound-4 fish; second and $300 went to Dracut's Dennis Proulx for an 18-10 specimen; and the third prize of $200 was given to Norm Armstrong of Chelmsford for a 17-3 carp. The smallest one on the board weighed 13-12.

The biggest bass was caught by accident by Bob Russell of Lowell. Bob said he saw the leader board and figured he'd never make it, so he switched to worms to fish for carp and instead took a 7-pound-6 largemouth for the $500 top prize.

Yeah, right. Second place and $300 went to Gus Lamont of North Reading for a 4-12 bass, and Roger Pyzocha of Ludlow, Mass., took the third prize of $200 for a 4-8 specimen. Oddly enough, most of the bass caught were largemouth, and derby official Bob Simard said the club is considering a second bass category next year for small-mouth. The smallest "money" bass was a 2-pound-9 fish for $50.

Jim Camacho of Lowell took home the top prize of $500 for his 2-pound-7 pickerel; second place and $300 went to Ludlow's Walter Pyzocha for a 2-pound-1 chainside; third and $200 went to Gus Lamont again for a 1-5 pick; and Jerry Tevepaugh of Lowell was given $100 for his fourth place fish of 13 ounces. The other six pickerel prizes went unclaimed.

Simard noted that almost all of the participants said they caught fish, mostly small ones. And having taken a dozen or so little small-mouth myself, I'd have to agree.

Sorry I missed this one last week, but Peter "Chad" Sokolowski of Wilmington took $50 and fourth place in the bass division in the 4th annual Amesbury Rotary Club's derby on Lake Attitash on June 18 and 19. Four of the 100 tagged fish in the derby were caught, but none took the grand prize of $10,000 or a new car. Oh well. In all, some $1,300 in prizes did go out.

Dan's Bait & Tackle in Tyngsboro will be holding a bass and pickerel derby on Lake Mascuppig on July 10, from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. Entry is $10 and the top prize in each species is $300.

Sports deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Any sports copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section.

The Town Crier sports department appreciates story tips and local teams' schedules whenever possible.

Sports clinics

Signup is now taking place for sport clinics for baseball and soccer for boys and girls ages eight through 12. Both clinics are conducted by WHS varsity coach Dick Scanlon. The baseball clinic will take place from 9 to 11 a.m., July 18-22; the soccer clinic will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. July 25-29.

These clinics, which stress the very basic skills, will be held at the Glen Road Recreation Area. Cost is $15 per clinic. Sign up in the Rec office between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

John Doherty Clinic

This summer the popular John Doherty Baseball Clinic will be coming to Wilmington August 4 and 5 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. John Doherty is a former Major League player and is currently regarded as one of the finest hitting instructors in the country. John and his staff will conduct a two day, eight hour intensive clinic for youngsters age 12 and under.

This clinic will be held at the Glen Road Recreation Area. Cost is $25. Register in the Rec office between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Who makes the Best Cheese Pizza?

And you get to vote for your favorite pizza spot

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

Our first "M.E. Awards for Excellence" (that's M.E., not Emmy) will go to the top three makers of cheese pizza in the area (not pepperoni, not mushroom - say cheese, please!).

In order to qualify for an award, your favorite cheese pizza spot must be nominated by you via the official entry blank elsewhere on this page. This official entry blank will also make you eligible for a piece of the pie, so to speak.

So forget Emmy, Oscar, Tony, and even Grammy, too - concentrate instead on the marvelously exciting, magnificent edibles right in our very own greater Middlesex East area.

We know you have good taste and an appetite for the best. We relish your opinions and urge you to think "M.E.," share the fruits of your experience and let everyone in on your favorite foods.

We'll start with cheese pizza and take it from there. Just send in your vote - on the official, original entry form here (no duplicates of any kind, please) - for the best cheese pizza in the area, and you get a chance not only to be heard but to win one of three prizes.

Our panel of judges will rank the top three vote-getters. Are they awesome, radical, massive? Wicked great or mighty fine?

If you happened to have cast your ballot for the most superior, grand prize-winning cheese pizza in the M.E. area, your name will be entered into the $100 drawing.

Similarly, if you voted for the second prize winner and the luck of the draw is with you, you may soon feast your eyes on $50.

If you chose as your favorite what we choose as our third favorite, you could win yourself at least $25 - which should buy you more than enough, momentarily exquisite pizza.

Take part in the media event of the era. Merry eating - and may we have your envelopes, please.

FM TALK: Numerous thoughts crossed our far-flung correspondent's mind this week, and the following are just a few of them:

AND THEN there was the one about the popular Boston radio personality who was queried by this columnist on how he was keeping cool during the recent heat wave. He replied, with a broad grin, "I'm not, just like everybody else." Then he quickly interjected: "But I'm thinking about flying down to Washington to take a cool dip in Carl Rowan's swimming pool." Sans an invitation, of course. You see, this radio guy doesn't think Bernard Getz deserves all the grief he's being put through from authorities as a result of defending himself with a gun on a New York subway a couple of years ago. And Rowan thinks Getz should be punished to the fullest extent of the law. Rowan, on the other hand, doesn't think he deserves to be punished for having shot a young man who was simply taking a dip - albeit unauthorized - in his swimming pool late one night. Putting aside the racial aspects of this story - including the well-publicized remarks made by Guardian Angel-founder Chris Silwa - I tend to agree with the radio guy: Getz doesn't deserve what he's going through, and if Rowan believes and can prove that his life was in danger that evening, then he doesn't deserve to be punished any further either. But if Rowan wants Getz put away, then he should be prepared to face the same consequences. Then there is the issue of gun control and the unregistered piece Mr. Rowan used to shoot that young fellow. That's an issue unto itself.

AND THEN there's that controversy surrounding Wade Boggs and that "other woman" he admits to having been involved with while on the road with the Red Sox. If you ask me, that "other woman" doesn't deserve one red cent from Boggs. Notwithstanding my feeling about Boggs getting involved with a woman on the road while still married to a woman back at home, I can't help but ask the question: whatever became of the theory that we are all ultimately responsible for our own actions? This woman never actually lived with Boggs, and she darn well knew what she was getting herself into when she agreed to see him on the side. This whole trend towards palimony is getting out of hand, and that other so-called Marvelous Marvin - the lawyer, not the fighter - should be put on a slow boat up the Mississippi River where hopefully he would be run aground for a few years. Or at least until Boggs can finish his baseball career. Enough nonsense is causing problems with the Red Sox without this incident adding fuel to the fire. Boggs, you were wrong and you got caught. His teammates and fans should forgive him. After all, haven't we all been forgiven at one time or other for something wrong we've done? As for Boggs' so-called other woman, I can only be reminded of the line, "There is no wind chill factor in the summer." And add to it: "And without money there can be no palimony." If Boggs drove a delivery truck, he'd be all set now. The price of fame can be a corker.

HEY, LET'S talk about something happy. Such as that marvelous new film from Steven Spielberg and Disney Studios entitled "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" If you're looking to have a terrific time for two hours, go see this movie.

CHINESE MUSICAL INSTRUMENT called a "Jeng" draws the attention of fifth-grade students of the Stoneham Central School during a recent culture program. The unusual instrument, which features 25 strings and has been widely used in China for more than 2,000 years, is played by Lily Wn, a member of the Evergreen Women's Club which presented the program.

Roving from S-1

You'll feel great after you do. There's no way to describe how truly ingenious this film really is. You have to just see it for yourself. By the way, in case you don't already know this, the author of the book upon which this film is based, "Who Censored Roger Rabbit?" is from Worcester. His name is Gary Wolf, and the 37-year-old writer, in a recent interview, said he can't believe he's suddenly the focus of so much attention, because he wrote the book strictly as a lark. Some lark! It'll probably make him a millionaire overnight. Which isn't a bad neighborhood to move quickly into. As for the movie version, I think Bob Zemeckis has done a brilliant job of transferring this clever story to the screen. I won't spoil it for you: you'll have to go see it, as I've said.

WHILE ON the subject of films, another "must see" picture this summer is "Bull Durham," with one of my favorite actors, Kevin Costner. Baseball movies have always captured my attention, and this one is right up there at the top of the list. The only baseball film to touch me greater was "Bang the Drum Slowly," with Robert DeNiro. Ironically, both films focus on the lives of catchers. As for a couple of disappointments, "Rambo III" and "Crocodile Dundee II" never quite lived up to what I'd expected. I guess it's pretty hard to live up to the advanced billing those two films received. They are, however, still worth catching, but after seeing the two aforementioned movies.

SUMMER IS also a great time of year to catch up on all those books you've wanted to read but never got around to. I wish Margaret Truman would come out with another addition to her Capital Crime series. Goodness, is she a terrific writer! When I speak of great mystery writers, I can't help but wince a bit at the thought that John D. MacDonald isn't around any longer to produce those great Travis Magee novels. I'm trying to get into Dick Francis, but his series isn't as entertaining as Travis Magee's. It's got to be that boat bum life in the Florida Keys that turns me on so much.

WELL, FOR fun there's always the Red Sox. Can you believe what Jeff Sellers has gone through this season? First he couldn't buy a run from his teammates at the beginning of the season, and now he's facing a lengthy recovery for a broken bone above the middle knuckle of his right hand, an injury he suffered during a game against Cleveland last week. Hopefully, his recovery will be fast, and when he returns to the mound maybe his teammates will produce a few runs for him for a change.

I DON'T know about you folks, but I'm going to need some form of entertainment to get me through the Democratic and Republican conventions this summer. Furthermore, there isn't enough caffeine in America to keep me awake during any upcoming debates between the Duke and George Bush...Thanks for the inquiries as to my whereabouts over the last couple of weeks. For the most part, I've been running amuck back in Newport, which is where I'd love to hide away for the rest of my life, if I could find a woman rich enough to support my lavish tastes. And tolerate my presence behind a typewriter most of the time. Now that's usually what scares them away. Don't give up, Ma. I'm still trying to find the right woman.

HAD A chance to catch the WBCN Battle of the Bands finals at the Metro. As usual, they were great. Among the judges of the contest was Bob Guccione, Jr., son of Penthouse publisher Bob Guccione. Young Guccione is the publisher of Spin magazine, which is the second most popular music publication, behind Rolling Stone. Way behind, in fact, but Bob, Jr. still has a lot of hope that Spin will eventually be the only true music magazine on the stands, since Rolling Stones has gradually gotten into covering areas other than music. His hope to succeed no longer comes with Daddy's blessing, however, since his father cut off his financial aid to the publication a while back. After being out of print for two months, Bob, Jr. latched onto a new backer, and now the magazine is back on the stands, with a circulation of 150,000.

JUST A couple of quick thoughts: Can you believe that Madonna, currently on Broadway starring in David Mamet's new play, "Speed the Plow," and Barbra Streisand are both fighting for the same part in a movie? The coveted part is Evita in Oliver Stone's movie version of the hit Broadway musical...Finally, this late night talk show fanatic is very pleased to see that David Letterman is no longer being shown only in re-runs. In spite of the on-going Writers Guild Strike, Letterman, who is a member of the guild, by the way, is back to being shown live, as of last evening (Tuesday). Thank goodness, I was beginning to know the re-run shows by heart. Make it a good week, and see you next Wednesday.

No such thing as a healthy tan? A very real possibility according to "Let's Face It," part of a multi-media national teenage health education pilot program - launched by the American Academy of Dermatology - at Stoneham High. The purpose of the program - as funded and developed by the Dermatological Division of Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. - is to educate young people about skin diseases.

During a recent visit from New York dermatologist Dr. Herbert White to Michael Lahiff's health education class, SHS students were warned that, in attempts to get deep tans, they too often ignore serious health risks.

"Let's Face It" is designed to reach teenagers "with the truth about types of skin care habits and their current and future consequences" as well as to eventually slow the spread of skin cancer and other skin diseases.

The Wakefield School Committee has granted preliminary approval to a before and after-school day care pilot program sponsored by the Wakefield YMCA. Scheduled to begin in September, the program will take place in the Atwell/Jr. High complex and will serve at least 30 elementary school students.

YMCA Executive Director Kevin Quinn terms the program unique because it "combines the resources of two social service organizations." The schools are in the business of education and the YMCA is in the business of child care," he says.

The new in-school service will expand the Y's in-house current child care program which has a waiting list of 50 children.

"Stay Clear, Stay Alive" is the word at Burlington's Wildwood School in the wake of a safety equipment demonstration presented there by Boston Edison lineworker Jack McManus. During the current school year, Boston Edison representatives have given more than 250 similar presentations in their service area - and have reached more than 10,000 students.

Light, electricity, the solar system, weather, soil, foods, animals, plants, insects, and chemistry are only some of the areas which Tewksbury North Street School students were asked to explore in a recent science fair there.

All grade four, five and six students were invited to participate and their parents encouraged to help them come up with projects appropriate for their children's grade levels. The school's point of view? "It is important to remember that even the simplest project can be effective if the child knows his or her material and presents it well."

"Your teacher said you completed more special projects this year than anyone else in your class," beamed the mother. "And she said your map was the best second-grade map she's ever seen."

"I'm so good at second grade," said the child, "maybe I should stay back."

Parade of Events

It always seems like a miracle when after a short time people that have never met before an exchange, leave as close friends as if they have known each other for years. The experience of getting to know each other's lifestyles, differences and similarities is exciting and important for the world's peace.

If you are interested in home-hosting a West Berliner (all ages) for one week July 15-22, please call Carole Maddison 334-4817, Paula Robleski 233-4374, or Pat Anthony 922-1936.

MDC JULY PROGRAMS

The Metropolitan District Commission's Reservations and Historic Sites Unit invites people of all ages to participate in free activities at Breakheart Reservation in Saugus. The reservation will present several rewarding programs in July.

Starting on Friday, July 1, and continuing for every Friday through the summer, the reservation will hold its Park Art program. Every week at 2 p.m., a different art or craft will be presented. Discover the fun in sun prints, mural paintings, sand castles and kite making. Each activity will relate to Breakheart's natural and cultural history. Meet at the Breakheart Amphitheater at Pearce Lake Beach on Breakheart's Elm Road in Saugus.

On Saturday, July 16, Breakheart will present a related program. At 1:30 p.m., attend Arts in the Park and participate in a variety of activities. Learn about candlemaking, wool spinning, and sun printing. Make collages from natural woodland materials. Arts in the Park will also feature a silk screening demonstration. Visitors may bring in their own light-colored T-shirts and have a Breakheart design printed on them! Meet at the Breakheart Amphitheater at Pearce Lake Beach on Breakheart's Elm Road in Saugus.

For more information on these programs or on Breakheart Reservation, call the reservation at 233-0834.

MetroParks, a service of the Metropolitan District Commission, offers free programs for children and adults. For more information on MetroParks events, please contact the MDC's Public Information Office at 727-5215.

USS CONSTITUTION TURNAROUND

The USS Constitution will get underway for its annual July 4th Turnaround cruise at 10:30 a.m. The highlight of the cruise will be a 21 gun salute to the nation at noon when the ship is abreast Castle Island, in Boston Harbor.

Some of the best vantage points in Boston to view the world's oldest commissioned warship are located along Boston Harbor's edge. They include: Charlestown Navy Yard, Fan Pier/Anthony's Pier Four, Commonwealth Pier and Fort Independence on Castle Island.

The ship will be open for public visiting after the cruise from 3 to 5 p.m. at Pier One, Charlestown Navy Yard.

MYOPIA POLO

Myopia Polo Centennial Celebration on Sunday July 3 at 1 p.m. Band Concert, Myopia Hunt parade at 1:15 p.m., Myopia Driving Club demonstration at 1:30 p.m., Dignitary Ceremonies at 2:15 p.m., Polo Match at 3 p.m.

GUTEN TAG

The Friendship Force Club of Northshore is making plans to say "Guten Tag" (hello) to members of the West Berlin Club. Forty-three ambassadors will arrive at Logan Airport July 15 for a one week stay in local homes.

MINUTEMAN TECH

A 30-hour daytime course on how to use the Macintosh Computer will be offered to adults and young people (age 15 and up) at the Minuteman Tech Summer school. The course will run Monday through Friday from July 5 to 15 and is designed for people with no computer background.

Those enrolling may attend mornings from 8:30 to 11:40 a.m. or afternoons from 12:10 to 3:20 p.m. Enrollment is limited to 11 per course (one person per Macintosh computer). Tuition is $300.

Those taking the course will learn to use Imagewriter and Laserwriter printers and various types of software such as MacWrite, FullPaint, MacDraw, Ready, Set, Go, etc. Emphasis will be placed on using the computer as a tool.

For information contact the Minuteman Tech Summer School office, 758 Marrett Road, Lexington, telephone 861-7150.

STURBRIDGE VILLAGE

The Fourth of July was a very important holiday for early 19th-century New Englanders, many of whom could remember the early days of the nation. This July Fourth, the spirit of a historical Independence Day will be re-created at Old Sturbridge Village, Sturbridge, Mass., complete with a reading of the Declaration of Independence, a parade, early American dances, Martial Band music, and a historical meeting-house program.

Visitors will be invited to picnic on the Common on this special day, take part in early 19th-century games, observe the flurry of activity, and tour the museum's exhibits. Picnicking on the Common is allowed only on July Fourth and is an opportunity for visitors to spread their blankets, relax, and take in the festivities.

At 9 a.m., the celebration will begin with the ringing of the Center Meetinghouse bell and the firing of muskets by the militia on the Common. Militiamen will honor the new nation at 10 a.m. by raising the American flag above the Common and giving a musket salute.

The center village will bustle with activity at 10:45 a.m. as historically dressed interpreters in the roles of leading citizens of an 1830s town will walk across the Common to the Center Meetinghouse for an assembly.

At 11 a.m., visitors will be invited to join interpreters at the Center Meetinghouse for an Independence Day program, re-creating the town of Sturbridge's centennial celebration in 1838. The public exercises will include an address, hymns, and prayers, drawn from historical sources.

At the close of the Meetinghouse program, the interpreters will take part in a picnic by the Bullard Tavern. Visitors are invited to spread blankets on the Common and enjoy lunch in the center village. Visitors may bring their lunch or purchase lunch through the Bullard Tavern: orders may be placed for the Bullard Tavern lunch in the Visitor Center from 9 to 11 a.m. Early 19th-century games will be led by interpreters in front of the Salem Towne House during the lunch hour.

At 1:15 p.m., costumed interpreters will toast Revolutionary War heroes and the young nation. One toast, originally given in 1838, specifically addresses the town of Sturbridge: "The good old town of Sturbridge, a country town, in the good old Bay State. May the independence of character, and sterling integrity we have had this day presented to us, be continued in this good old town to the latest generations."

The historical commemoration of the nation's birthday and the town's 100th birthday will continue with a parade which will begin near the Salem Towne House in the center village at 1:30 p.m. Interpreters in the roles of militiamen, farmers, tradesmen, and leading citizens of an 1830s town will march around the Common, through the mill neighborhood, and circle back to the Center Meetinghouse. At 2 p.m., there will be a reading of the Declaration of Independence from a podium in front of the Center Meetinghouse. The reading will be followed by a musket salute and the traditional ringing of the Meetinghouse bell.

Following the dramatic reading, costumed interpreters will raise a colorful toy hot-air balloon on the Common, near the Bullard Tavern at 3:30 p.m., wind and weather permitting. Flying toy hot-air balloons was a popular pastime for young boys in the 1830s. At 4 p.m. the Martial Band will play early 19th-century fife and drum music in front of the Center Meetinghouse. A festive demonstration of early American dance will take place at 4:30 p.m., and at 5 p.m. the tolling of the Center Meetinghouse bell will announce the end of the day's activities.

For more information on the July Fourth activities and other events at Old Sturbridge Village, call (617) 347-3362.

People who are deaf can call the Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) number, (617) 347-5383.

For special setups, interviews with staff, photographs, or slides, contact Kristi Kienholz, Manager of Public Relations at Old Sturbridge Village, at (617) 347-3362, ext. 265.

Old Sturbridge Village is a living history museum that re-creates a New England town of the 1830s. The museum covers over 200 acres with more than 40 restored buildings where people in historical dress demonstrate the life, work, and community celebrations of early 19th-century New Englanders.

During 1988, Old Sturbridge Village will be showcasing its newest exhibit, the Bixby House. The exhibit, which opened on April 30, presents the family life of a New England farmer and blacksmith in the early 19th century. The house is located across from the Blacksmith Shop, and provides the museum with a new opportunity to show how a rural artisan family's work and personal life were interrelated during the 1800s.

Old Sturbridge Village is open year-round. Summer hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., through October 30. Admission is $9.50 for adults, $4.75 for children 6-15, and children under age 6 are admitted free. Prices subject to change. Old Sturbridge Village is located on Route 20 west in Sturbridge, Mass., near Exit 9 of the Massachusetts Turnpike and Exit 2 of Interstate 84.

During 1988, the town of Sturbridge, Mass. is celebrating its 250th birthday. The Meetinghouse program at Old Sturbridge Village, based on the town's centennial celebration address of 1838, complements Sturbridge's 250th celebration.

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

Short Takes

Who Framed Roger Rabbit Starring Bob Hoskins, Christopher Lloyd, Joanna Cassidy and the voice of Charles Fleischer as Roger. Directed by Robert Zemeckis. Screenplay by Jeffrey Price and Peter S. Seaman. Produced by Robert Watts and Frank Marshall. Rated PG (mild profanity).

It is like nothing you have ever seen before.

I know, it's a blanket statement, but honestly, Who Framed Roger Rabbit is one of the most unique, and pleasant, experiences you can have for about $6. And since it was so costly to make, you may never see anything like it again, so it really is worth the six bucks.

A combination of live action and animation that is nothing like Gene Kelly dancing with a mouse, or the flat animation/human mix found in Mary Poppins, Roger Rabbit and the other denizens of 1947's Toontown are as three-dimensional, active and articulate as the flesh and blood actors with whom they share the screen. This is because Disney's Touchstone Studio and Steven Spielberg spent about $45 million to shoot a live action film, have hundreds of artists painstakingly draw the cartoons over the film and then highlight and shade the animated characters with a computer. And it worked. Boy, did it work. When Roger picks up a coffee cup, that rabbit is picking up a real cup. After awhile, the two worlds become so enmeshed in each other it's difficult to tell them apart. The two just sort of glide together.

The action begins when Eddie Valiant (Bob Hoskins) is approached by R.K. Maroon, head of Maroon Cartoons, to tail Jessica, the most voluptuous cartoon ever to sashay through Toontown. (Jessica's voice, by the way, is provided by Kathleen Turner, although she is uncredited.) Seems that Jessica hasn't been faithful to her husband, the dumpy, stuttering Roger Rabbit. And once she strayed, he started to forget his lines.

But Eddie doesn't think he's the right man for the job. A down-on-his-luck detective, he doesn't work for Toons. As a matter of fact, he hates 'em, ever since a Toon killed his brother. Hoskins is nothing short of brilliant in this film. Stolid and stodgy, he's the perfect foil for the insanity of the Toons, who, in human form, would really be raving lunatics. These are creatures that feel no pain and would do anything for a laugh. Anything. And there's Hoskins, who wants no part of it and would rather bury his troubles in an amber glass of Jack Daniels.

Hoskins is a British actor, although you'd never know it from his gruff, American accent. His wonderful performance was actually a tour de force, with a lot of brilliant mime thrown in. That's because the whole time he is on screen, he was acting to air or props, as there wasn't actually a rabbit to play against.

While the film ends with a real bang 'em up finale, it is even more fun to see cartoon characters from decades ago dusted off and reproduced exactly as we remember them. And while they are funny and wild and nostalgic, the filmmakers have instilled a jolt of 80s honesty that puts the film on a level you never would have found 40 years ago. The Toons exist purely for human pleasure, but are second class citizens. They live in their own ghetto on the edge of town, are not allowed in establishments with "Humans Only" signs and can perform and wait on people in the Ink and Paint Club, but aren't allowed to sit at a table.

While the film can be enjoyed on several levels, don't worry, it is no more serious than the wild duet performed by Daffy and Donald Duck. There are jokes that will no doubt fly right over the heads of the kids in the audience, but the sight gags, especially the devilishly manic bits Warner's cartoons were so well known for, will delight everyone.

I could go on and on. Just go see it. You'll know what I mean.

Short Takes

Stars and Bars is an odd look at America through the eyes of a staid British art dealer who can't seem to adjust himself to life in the States. But when Daniel Day Lewis visits a decrepit Southern family, headed by Harry Dean Stanton, he gets a dose of Americana that knocks him for a loop. That's because it's Americana as seen through the bottom of a musty beer bottle. Quirky, but fun, and funny. Rated R.

Wings of Desire is an interesting film about angels in Berlin. Sort of. Shot in black and white, it's a very artsy movie that doesn't pay off for 90 minutes, and while that pay-off is intriguing, almost brilliant, no movie should leave you in the dark for that long. Heck, it takes you almost an hour to realize that when the film lapses from black and white to color, it's because angels only see in black and white, but people can see a broader spectrum. A little explanation from director Wim Wenders would have gone a long way. Rated PG-13.

Lady in White is an atmospheric horror story that suffers from too low a budget for the special effects it uses. Lucas Haas stars as a nine-year-old boy who is visited by the ghost of a murdered girl and helps to solve her murder. Engaging, but not all that creepy. Rated PG-13.

Bull Durham is about baseball and romance and sex and talent and poetry and metaphysics, but not necessarily in that order. Susan Sarandon plays a wonderfully eccentric lady who may look as if she's out in left field someplace, but knows exactly what she's doing. Each year she chooses a rookie from the local, minor league Durham Bulls and "helps" him through the season. Only when she chooses Timothy Robbins, her signals get crossed with veteran Kevin Costner, every bit a match for her intellect and libido. This three-way split is one of the best adult comedies ever made. Rated R.

Rambo III is exactly what you expect — violence, bodies and a tag line every 15 minutes or so. Sylvester Stallone talks more in this flick than the other two, though that's not necessarily a good thing, as he's a pretty dull guy when not blowing people off the face of the earth. It is definitely slick and the pyrotechnical effects impressive, but the scenes not filled with death and destruction are pretty dull. And those filled with death and destruction are rather ugly. Rated R.

Willow is a classic case of overkill. Too many subplots, too many special effects and not enough good old-fashioned charm have made it a flick to forget. This fantasy is filled with little people and evil queens and even a two-headed dragon, but it doesn't have enough original plot going for it to keep you awake. Too bad, because buried beneath all that glitz, there really is a sweet little fairy tale. Rated PG.

Crocodile Dundee II lacks the exuberance of the original and is top-heavy with Paul Hogan's antics and his bushman wisdom. The sparkle the first time around was its air of discovery as Hogan learned about the Big Apple and his girlfriend adapted Down Under. This time the adventure has them fighting stereotypical Latino drugsters in an outlandish plot that makes little sense and just drags along, broken up by an occasionally funny scene. Rated PG.

Poltergeist III is a mere shadow of the first chiller in this trilogy and doesn't even rate the price of admission. With all the special effects zapped through a haunted Chicago highrise, you'd think the filmmakers could do more than raise one or two paltry scares. But this thing is so bogged down by its own technology and poorly shaped characters that the ghost story is almost lost in the fuss. Forget this one, as horror flicks are supposed to give us nightmares, not put us to sleep. Rated PG-13.

PETER RABBIT

On Friday, July 1 at 9:15 and 11:45 a.m., the classic characters Flopsy, Mopsy, and Cottontail join Peter Rabbit in launching the 1988 Children's Musicals series at the North Shore Music Theatre.

As presented by The Gingerbread Players and Jack, the many adventures of Peter and his friends are brought to life in a musical fantasy filled with songs, dances and laughter. The Gingerbread Players and Jack, a professional theater company from New York, have been delighting Music Theatre audiences for more than a decade. The company's primary aim is to raise the standards of children's theater in order to develop the taste and appetite of young audiences for the living stage.

Children's Musicals at the North Shore Music Theatre are presented as part of TheatreVenture, the North Shore Music Theatre's ongoing youth education programs. Other musicals scheduled this summer are: "Pinocchio," July 8; "Peter Pan," July 15; "Sleeping Beauty," July 22; "Cinderella," July 29; "Rumplestiltskin," August 5; "Mary Poppins," August 12; "But I'm Just a Kid," August 19; "The Princess and the Frog," August 26; and "The Wizard of Oz," September 2.

For information on group rates, subscriptions or tickets to the North Shore Music Theatre's 1988 Children's Musicals, call (617) 922-8500. Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Writing Woodchips for the Middlesex East Supplement has afforded me the great privilege and opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make many new friends. I'll name only some of the many I've met in each of the 10 cities and towns of this supplement who I know because of Woodchips: Fr. Martin Ryan S.J. of St. Margaret's Church in Burlington, Grace Boutwell, Woburn, Carrie Mooney, Winchester, Connie Johnson, (Honeycomb) Wakefield, Walter Arsenault (Harrows) Reading, Sandy, (Pinewood Gardens) North Reading, Frank Tuttle, Wilmington, Ed Sargent, Tewksbury, Joseph Bianchi, Lynnfield and Jim Curley, Stoneham. These are representatives of the hundreds of people I now know because of this column. I therefore thank three people who were instrumental for me in starting me off on this new venture: Mr. Wayne Higden, who brought in a copy of the Burlington edition of the Woburn Times and told me to send one of my poems; Bill Pacino, who was in charge of the Poetry Page and last, but not means least, Mr. Richard Haggerty, editor of this supplement. "Thanks."

I have lunch at the Woburn Elks almost every Thursday noon. Joe Altervesta looked real sharp last Thursday wearing an "Arrow shirt" with a "bow tie." Kathy and I attended a wedding reception at the Woburn Elks last week and I came back to my table after going up to the head table for the third time for ice cream and cake. Kathy gave me a verbal blast as she shouted, "Why you idiot, aren't you ashamed of yourself, I suppose you'll be going up again for the fourth time." "I sure am," I said, "it doesn't bother me a bit because I keep telling the folks at the head table that I'm getting the ice cream and cake for YOU!"

To keep a little peace in the family I bought Kathy a canary for her birthday. It was guaranteed to be a beautiful singer and it was. Kathy noticed right away that the poor bird hopped on one leg. "Boy, you are as stupid as the day is long," was only the start of her barrage. "They palmed off a lame bird on you - take it back!" The clerk at the pet store was very considerate and returned my money but he did say, "Tell me, what the heck does your wife want anyway, a 'singer' or a 'dancer'?"

I remember when motion pictures were silent. It is kind of difficult today to find a movie that isn't "unspeakable." Bob Giguere walked into Reardon's and said that the Metro Police received a report that there were numerous topless bathers at Revere Beach across from Kelly's. Well, I never saw a place clear out so quickly since someone threw a stink bomb in Ferri's corner poolroom many years ago. Well, when we got to the beach we found out that the rumor was true, but unfortunately for some, the topless bathers were MEN.

Woodchips congratulates

Kathleen M. Adams of Stoneham who graduated recently from Boston College, summa cum laude, with a bachelor of science degree in marketing/business management. Also from Stoneham and B.C. grads are: Andrea M. Howard, A.B. in communications; David M. Karr, B.S. in finance; Robert D. Mahoney, B.S. in accounting; Kristen J. Neri, A.B. in economics and Michael P. Sorabella, A.B. in economics. Good luck to all.

I am the only non-college grad in my immediate family. There is one retired judge, four attorneys, three doctors of medicine, nine school teachers, one director of science, one school principal, two nationally known business executives and, as the toastmaster at a recent family reunion, trying to be funny said, "One failure - the Woodchipper!" After the initial laughter had subsided, Uncle John Shea got up and said, "The Woodchipper may not be a college grad and as a matter of fact he had to be pushed, towed and dragged through high school, but I'm 87 years old and I have as much respect and admiration for the happiness and also the groans and chuckles he brings with his weekly column, as I have for all of you. I don't consider the Woodchipper a failure!" Thank you Uncle John.

Dennis Tully told his mother Maureen, "I learned in Sunday school that we came from dust and we will return to dust - Is that true Ma?" "Yes, it is," replied Maureen. "Well then," exclaimed Dennis, "there's someone under my bed that's either coming or going!"

Personality winners: State Police Corporal Joseph Howell, retired Sgt. Jim Sartori of Saugus, Major Edward Cronin (formerly in command of the State Police at Logan Airport), Andrew Gelasco, Pamela MacKill, Dom St. Pierre, Maria Chaput, Kara Lynch, John Hamilton, David Fields, Z. Khatri, Claudette Brooks, Bill Burdick, Allan Herring, Susan Krzyso, Kerry Leonard, Liz Parziale, Karla Lundquist, Larz F. Neilson and Tom Jordan.

Short visits makes for long friends (I wish someone would tell that to my Aunt Nora from Wilmington). Hospitality is making your guests feel at home when you wish they never came in the first place. In case you never worked on a dairy farm, a cow is always milked for the "udder side." The Idaho Potato Growers Association refused to invite Walter Cronkite to be the keynote speaker at their annual convention because Walter is a "common-tater!" Many of you readers who have waited and waited for your plane to take off, will appreciate this - my Aunt Nora waited so long for a flight to Chicago that she told an airline official, "I could get on a broom and get to Chicago quicker!" "Ma'am," replied the gentleman, "go right ahead, Runway 34 is clear for takeoff!" Frank Mazzoni of Wilmington is always singing,

"Oh, give me a home where the Buffalo roam." Well, Frank, if you ever get one, please be careful where you walk.

Folks, do you ever get this feeling? A rooster exclaimed, "Awe, what's the use - yesterday an egg - today a rooster and tomorrow a feather duster!" I asked Kathy today, "Where in the name of heaven does all our grocery money go?" She smiled then said, "Stand sideways, fatso, and look in the mirror!" I don't know why I wasn't invited to play at the recent The Country Club tournament - I missed getting a hole-in-one by five strokes last week. I played with Angus MacTavish who is an avid golfer. He is on the links rain, shine, cold days and hot, nothing stops him from his round of golf. Last week, however, he stopped playing on the ninth hole, doffed his cap while a funeral procession was wending its way on a road alongside of the golf course.

Later on, up at the clubhouse some of those who saw this great deed congratulated Angus for his show of respect. "It was the least that I could have done," he explained, "after all I was married to Anna for 39 years!"

Uncle John Shea went to the doctor for a check-up. He related his aches and pains and the doctor said, "Look John, you're 87, I can't make you young again. I just want to keep getting older and older." I asked my cousin Angelo Quaganti, "I'm confused, just what is the evening meal, dinner or supper?" "The way my wife Nancy cooks," he said with a sigh, "it's a prelude to a case of indigestion!" A roadside sign in upper New York State said, "In this state, 4,029 people were killed by gas last year, eight inhaled it, 21 put a match to it and 4,000 STEPPED ON IT!"

THE GLORIOUS 4TH OF JULY

Aye, Raise her to the highest mast
Secure and make her halyards fast.
Then wind and rain or gentle breeze
The summer's heat or winter's freeze
Cannot deter Old Glory's wave
O'er the land of the free and the brave.

Our flag has flown o'er Arctic's waste,
Through desert storms and cyclone's haste.
Has proudly waved on ships at sea,
And on the moon made history.
Has felt the sting of shot and shell,
On Iwo Jima's living hell.

So on this glorious 4th today,
I bow my head and start to pray;
"Oh Lord, please grant this land will be,
Forever blessed with liberty.
And let Old Glory raised on high,
As freedom's emblem proudly fly."

Caution on summer workouts

To the millions of people who exercise regularly, summer presents both unique opportunities and unique hazards. After a long winter, they can take their workouts outdoors and add varied activities that had just recently been impossible. But they need to take precautions against summer heat, counsels fitness expert Judi Sheppard Missett, founder of Jazzercise.

"Everyone wants a hot workout, providing that the heat is purely figurative," says Missett. "Literal heat and humidity can lead to dehydration and exhaustion. Summer provides a psychological lift that makes exercise seem more inviting, but those who work out in the summer need to be careful not to overdo."

Local Jazzercise instructor Lorraine Scenci of Woburn tells how to make the most of summer while minimizing its hazards:

• By all means, enjoy the outdoors. Nothing keeps your workout fresh like variety. If you're accustomed, say, to taking fitness classes, you won't want to give up indoor exercise, but you can add outdoor activities. Take a walk, or a run, in the morning or evening hours. Or try cycling or swimming.

• Drink plenty of water. Sweat is your body's cooling mechanism, so the higher the temperature and the greater your activity, the more you sweat. You lose moisture, and you need to replace it. Drink a quart of water in the hour before you exercise, drink small amounts of water every 15 minutes while you work out, and drink some more water when you finish. That's true whether you're working out outdoors or in. (If you're indoors, by the way, be sure your room is well-ventilated.)

• Avoid sun damage to your skin. Put on sun block before you go out, or wear a visor or a hat to protect your face and head.

• Avoid working out during the mid-day hours. The sun is less intense during the morning and the evening, so you're less likely to suffer the ill effects of summer heat then.

• Wear clothing that won't cause you to overheat - loose absorbent clothing made from fabrics that breathe.

• Exercise moderately. It's always true that the harder you work the more tired you become, and the more likely you are to injure yourself. That's even truer as the weather grows hotter; the heat saps your energy. But you'll derive excellent benefits from a moderate workout, so moderation makes sense.

• Recognize the signs of heat distress: clumsiness, stumbling, excess or absence of sweating, headache, nausea, dizziness, apathy or any gradual impairment of consciousness. If any of this happens to you, stop exercising, drink plenty of fluids (preferably water), cool off as quickly as you can, and seek medical attention immediately.

Scenci's classes are held on Tuesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Lynch Elementary School on Brantwood Road, Winchester. For further information call Jazzercise at 933-7024.

Summer art classes filling up

Summer art classes are filling fast but openings are still available in all classes except woodworking for 5-7 year olds. Each week classes for 8-12 year olds are 8:45 to 10:15 a.m., 5-7 year olds meet 10:45 to 11:45 a.m. and 3 and 4 year olds meet noon to 1 p.m. Mothers of 3-year-olds are strongly urged to consider these summer classes as "Mom & Tot" classes and should attend with their little one.

Woodworking is July 11-15, taught by Bob Muse and will include woodburning for the 8-12 year olds. Classes for this week will meet at Killam School on Charles Street in Reading.

Drawing and Painting is July 18-22, taught by Barbara Fay Wiese. Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday classes will follow the above schedule but on Tuesday all students from each class will go on a field trip to New England Alive in Ipswich to observe and sketch barnyard animals as well as native northeastern animals such as a black bear, a coyote, etc. We'll leave at 8:45 a.m. and return at noon. These classes will be held at the Arts Center.

Printmaking and Sculpture is July 25-29. We will create a large walk-through sculptural environment and we will videotape our travels through it on Thursday and Friday. Barbara Fay Wiese is the teacher and the classes are held at the Arts Center.

Puppets and Creative Drama will be August 1-5. Ms. Wiese will teach these classes, which are also held at the Arts Center.

Students in these classes will make and use various puppets throughout the week. Each class will present a short program for their families and friends on Friday, August 5. An optional trip to the Puppet Showplace in Brookline is planned for Wednesday, August

3 to see master puppeteer Paul Vincent Davis perform Rumpelstiltskin.

To sign up for any or all of these classes check your local library for registration forms or call 942-0538. Forms may also be picked up at the Creative Arts office, 25 Woburn Street, Reading (our entrance is on Sanborn Street).

Tips to protect your home during your summer vacation

Don't make your vacation a vacation for burglars as well. With the summer vacation season fast approaching, homeowners need to take necessary precautions, says Marjorie Dykstra, Sales Manager of Wintergreen Properties' Londonderry Office, a real estate broker who specializes in providing relocation services.

"Many homeowners take their family vacations during the summer months which is good news for would-be home burglars. There is no absolute deterrent to burglary, but there are some precautions homeowners can take to help reduce the risk of being burglarized," Dykstra advises.

Dykstra offers the following suggestions for homeowners to practice to reduce home burglary attempts during the family vacation.

"One of the easiest ways to deter a home burglary while you are on vacation, is to avoid the obvious signs of absence," she advises. An overflowing mailbox and a week's worth of morning papers accumulating on the front porch are signals to burglars that no one is home, she explains.

Dykstra adds, "Many homeowners ask their neighbors to collect their mail and newspapers while they are on vacation. If you can't rely on a neighbor, it would be a good idea to call the post office and news delivery service and stop all deliveries to your home while you are gone. Plan to notify these places several days before you actually leave on vacation."

Another option for homeowners is to hire a trustworthy "house sitter" to live in your house while you are away. A

"house sitter" would eliminate the problem of your home sitting empty while you are gone and, if you have a pet, a "house sitter" would eliminate the need for a kennel service, explains Dykstra.

Dykstra adds, "Be careful where and when you discuss your travel plans because you may unknowingly be sharing your vacation schedule with 'criminal ears.'"

When you are packing your car, try not to advertise that you are leaving, she advises. An obvious sign that soon no one will be home is stacked suitcases in the driveway and an open car trunk. In addition, it is often advisable not to put your home address on luggage tags as burglars often lurk in airports, train and bus terminals in order to learn the location of unoccupied homes by reading luggage tags. Of course, phone numbers should be placed on the tags, or perhaps your office address, in the event of lost luggage.

"Every homeowner should make sure all doors and windows are securely locked before leaving on vacation. Deadbolt locks can provide extra protection. Lights around the house should be placed on timers to give the appearance that someone is home," adds Dykstra.

Her company is a member of RELO-Inter-City Relocation Service, headquartered in Chicago. The RELO network is the nation's oldest and largest referral network of independent real estate brokers which provides a wide array of services to help individuals sell a house in one community and buy a home in the new community. Wintergreen Properties is one of nearly 1200 member RELO companies with more than 3400 member offices nationwide. The RELO network has representatives in 13,000 cities in the U.S. and in 19 foreign countries.

Short Takes

From S-6

The Presidio combines sex and scandal at a military compound, but the plot is so thin it makes last season's lame "No Way Out," a similar type of thriller, look like a Hitchcockian classic. Mark Harmon and Meg Ryan steam up the set, but the flick vacillates between a psychological drama involving her father, played by Sean Connery, and a murder mystery that appears to have been added as an afterthought. Because there is no clear-cut statement as to what this movie wants to be, it just kind of lies there. Rated R. * *

Funny Farm is a warm, delightful comedy about a couple who try to escape the coldness of the big city for the charm and warmth of the country, only to find people can be nasty everywhere. Chevy Chase has never been better as an aspiring, but talentless novelist who can't quite adapt to his Rockwellian hell. Rated PG. * * *

Big is about what happens to little boys who wish they were bigger — and wake up to find themselves Tom Hanks. A funny, bittersweet, romantic fairy tale, director Penny Marshall deserves the kudos for keeping the focus on the human side of this story and not on special effects and cheap shot gags. Big is definitely a winner. Rated PG. * * *

The Great Outdoors is a half-baked summer movie that soundly wastes John Candy as a mild mannered guy who just wants to spend some time with his family in the woods. Enter crude, smarmy, brother-in-law Dan Ackroyd doing his usual schtick, and things only go downhill. If you could describe a movie by color, this would be beige. And if a writer has ever been overrated, it's John Hughes. Rated PG. *

Red Heat is yet another mediocre movie by Walter Hill that pales in comparison to its source: "48 Hours." The buddies this time are Chicago cop Jim Belushi and Rusky Arnold Schwarzenegger, both out to nab a drug dealer. They aren't bad together, but the violent story was definitely constructed by the numbers. Rated R. * *

Babette's Feast is a cinematic repast that will sate your visual cravings. A simple story of a master French chef driven to the Belgian countryside by war, only to become a servant, she eventually finds a way to satisfy her artistic nature. After 14 years of cooking little more than soups and gruels, Babette wins a lottery and prepares a dinner the locals will never forget. This is hearty fare indeed. Rated G. * * * 1/2

Big Business may suffer from a lack of depth, as the plot to this comedy is sketchy at best, but it still has plenty of big laughs. Bette Midler and Lily Tomlin have dual roles as twins switched at birth who find each other years later when the hayseed sisters go to the Big Apple to haggle over the sale of a local factory, owned, of course, by the corporate twins. While a little overblown, Midler is still hysterical as the hard-as-nails corporate leader and Tomlin has never given a richer performance than as the city gal longing for greener pastures. Rated PG. * * *

Free brochure for eye injuries

Nearly one million Americans have a vision impairment due to an eye injury. An estimated 45 percent of these impairments occurred in the home.

Chairman/CEO
Woburn Five Cents
Savings Bank

"Some of the most rewarding exchanges I've had during my 20 years at the bank have been with the children of Woburn and its neighboring towns. I've enjoyed the time I have taken to give tours and speak with more than 3,600 students from our local schools. Honestly, I don't know how much they've learned from me, but I certainly have learned a great deal from them. They really keep me on my toes."

"Most of them are just at the age when money is becoming important to them. They're just beginning to realize that adults don't have an endless supply of ready cash. They're also beginning to understand that, if they want a new bike or a new radio, they have to work (even if it's just household chores) and save their money.

"I think the real understanding of the value of money comes when the kids find out what grownups have to do to achieve their financial goals. They meet some of our loan officers and investment managers and find out exactly how people like their parents pay for cars and houses and college. Every once in a while, you see one or two students whose eyes light up with a new appreciation of what Mom and Dad are doing for them. It's a great education for all of us."

START VACATION WITH RAMESSES THE GREAT

The "Ramesse the Great" Exhibition at the Boston Museum of Science is offering a wide range of educational activities for children and adults on Ramesse II, ancient Egypt and the amazing science of archaeology.

Where was the world's first comic book invented? Did Ramesse really suck his thumb? What do the Boston Patriots and the ancient Egyptians have in common? Young visitors can find the answers to these questions and more when they take the children's recorded tour of the "Ramesse the Great" exhibition. While adults can wander through the exhibit listening to tape narrated by Charlton Heston, children ages 7-14 can enjoy Shari Lewis and friends, on a tape that focuses on the lifestyles of the Egyptians. Narrated tours allow visitors to listen and learn at their own pace as they walk through the gallery. They are available for $3 each.

Museum volunteers who have completed an 18-hour course presented by noted Egyptologists are on hand throughout the exhibit to offer insight and information about the Egyptian artifacts and the times of Ramesse. No question is too great or too small for these knowledgeable volunteers who are easily recognizable in their blue and gold Ramesse insignia scarves, or dressed in ancient Egyptian garb.

12-RING CAT SHOW

The Cat Fanciers' Federation, Inc., is presenting a 12 Ring Cat Show on July 2 and 3 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Park Plaza Castle in downtown Boston.

Over 250 cats and kittens representing many of the countries in the world will be in competition. The hairless Sphynx will be coming to Boston for this "Convention of Cats."

Come and see the Best Cat, Best Kitten, Best Alter, and the Best Household Pet — all on exhibition for your viewing. Come and meet the world's favorite Garfield — In Purrson! Plus breed seminars, "Ask the Vet," shopping boutiques, and grooming demonstrations. Best of the Best Awards and Parade of Breeds on Sunday afternoon. The Morris Trophy, a People's Choice, and a Best Kitten Award by the Morris Foundation.

All this and much more at the July 4th weekend Cat Show. Admission $4 Adults/$3 Seniors-Children. CFF is a non-profit, educational organization dedicated to the welfare of all cats. For more information, call 426-2000.

NEWPORT JAZZ & FOLK

The JVC Jazz Festival is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday Aug. 13 and 14 and the Ben & Jerry's Newport Folk Festival the following weekend Aug. 20 and 21. Both events will take place between noon and 6:30 p.m. and will be held at Fort Adams State Park beside beautiful Newport Harbour. For complete artist information write to the mail order address listed below or call 401-847-3700.

Tickets for both Newport Festivals are on sale now at the following agencies: MAIL — JVC Newport Jazz Festival, P.O. Box 605, Newport, R.I. 02840. Ben & Jerry's Newport Folk Festival, P.O. Box 1221, Newport, R.I. 02840. IN PERSON — All Ticketron agencies, Strawberry Record Stores, Out of Town, Cambridge; Axelrods, Providence and at The Festival Ticket office 670 Thames St., Newport. CHARGE: By phone 800-382-8080, or 617-497-1118.

SALAD SEASON

Warmer weather puts most of us in the mood for activities having little to do with cooking — least of all, the heavy duty kind. At the same time, appetites turn to lighter, cooking fare that satisfies without leaving us over-stuffed says Nancy C. Stutzman, Nutrition Home Economist with the Middlesex Cooperative Extension.

The solution? Salads, of course! Not, however, the obligatory wilted leaves with half-hearted garnish and a dollop of bottled dressing which is all too often a boring sidebar to dinner. Rather, colorful combinations of ingredients that are quick and simple to put together, score high in both eye — and palate appeal as well as nutritive value. Many salads serve as a lunch or super main dish accompanied by crusty bread. Choose the freshest produce available and vary the additions.

Fish and Pasta Salad is a good way to use up leftover fish. It works equally well with canned fish. When using canned salmon or sardines, crush the bones to get the calcium benefit. This provides a healthy balance of carbohydrates, protein and good taste.

Other tasty options: a super summer salad sparked with oranges and green grapes, Salad Nicoise with cooked potatoes and green beans, an Italian mozzarella and tomato salad — another good source of calcium.

The imagination can create other refreshing mix-and-matches, marrying the family's favorite fixings with whatever is on hand — chicken, beef or fish, raw or cooked vegetables, fruits, nuts and cheeses.

While salads are usually a good source of fiber, they can also be a rich source of fat from the salad dressing. A light addition of the dressing is all that is needed to bind the ingredients and flavors. The fat and sodium in dressings can be controlled when they are home-made.

Cooperative Extension, a division of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, offers equal opportunity in programs and employment.

If you have knowledge of an event of interest to all, write to COMING ATTRACTIONS, care of this local newspaper. We are on the prowl on all and everything that can happen in the summertime.

A time for games

The Fourth of July is, if nothing else, a time for fun and games. A variety of games take place throughout Wilmington's celebration, including road races, hospital bed races, horseshoes, volleyball, croquet, halfball, and a ladies' two-mile walk.

Many of the events are organized for team participation, with the teams enrolled in a "super-team" competition. Membership in a team is not a requirement, however, for someone who simply wants to enter an event where a team is not needed.

The teams are organized around families, companies, or town groups. Past years have seen groups such as Analog Devices, Wilmington Shell, the Whalen family, the Phillips family, and the Wilmington Kiwanis Club in competition. Last year's super-team winner was Wallyworld, organized by Wally Sferrazza.

The triathlon this year will be held at the high school track, with tire rolling taking the place of canoeing.

Entry forms for all the events are available in the Fourth of July Headquarters, where the phone number is 657-8081.

Activities of the Wilmington Kiwanis Club

The Wilmington Kiwanis Club is a group of Wilmington people dedicated to making life in our community a little better. Fully understanding that as a group we can achieve greater effects than as individuals, we work to improve today and the future for our children, elderly, families and all citizens.

Founded 21 years ago the Wilmington Kiwanis Club, the local affiliate of Kiwanis International, provides the basis for our efforts. All funds raised in our work are used exclusively for charitable purposes. In fact this supplement to the Town Crier, through the advertisers and our now famous Chicken Barbecue occurring this week provide a large percentage of our funds.

Our Club is an important sponsor of the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute, in Boston. This internationally acclaimed Center provides the finest care available for children who have suffered serious physical trauma through automobile accidents and the like. Realizing that serious trauma causes the death of more children than all childhood diseases combined, the New England Kiwanis Clubs pooled their resources with some very dedicated medical experts and created the Trauma Center. We all hope for the day that the Pediatric Trauma Center is not needed, until that day we are happy to provide these services to our community, and indeed any child in need.

This year the Kiwanis Club was happy to be able to provide $500 Scholarships to six Wilmington High graduates and one Shawsheen Tech graduate.

Our club always tries to recognize the efforts of local students and provide whatever assistance we can. We honor the High School Student of the Month as well as the top students of the in the Business Education and Industrial Arts Departments. These young adults join us for an evening meeting and are presented with a token gift, acknowledging their efforts.

Students excelling in athletics and the arts receive help from the Kiwanis. Be it traveling to Utah to participate in the National Junior Olympics or to Japan to participate in the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra Tour of Japan, Wilmington students receive support from our club.

Special Needs children also get a boost from the Kiwanis Club. Every summer, the Club sponsors a cook-out at Camp 40 Acres for the youngsters enrolled in the Wilmington Recreation Dept Special Needs Program. The S.E.E.M. Collaborative Spring Prom Dance and the Harvest Ball Dance are both events sponsored by the Kiwanis and benefit special needs children and their families.

Senior Citizens living in our community benefit from Kiwanis Charities. Every year the Club sponsors a Holiday Dinner for the Deming Way residents. The Club also sponsors an annual Dinner at the K of C Hall for a group of our community's seniors, a well deserved and much appreciated night out with friends.

The Kiwanis Club supports all manner of youth sports and events. Many teams and leagues are the recipients of Kiwanis donations. The Horribles Parade, promoting a safe Halloween, the Easter Egg Hunt, The D.A.R.E. Drug Awareness Program, McGruff - Take A Bite Outta Crime Program are but some of the ways the Kiwanis support safe and happy childhood.

All this week you will see members of the Kiwanis Club working on the Wilmington Common, in a variety of capacities, in support of the Fun on the Fourth festivities. The Fourth of July, Fun on the Fourth events are both a service project for the Club and a fund-raising event.

Club membership is open to any adult living or working in Wilmington, who is not already a member of another service group, and is willing to join us in our efforts. If you are interested, speak to any Kiwanian you see, he will be glad to talk to you.

Why travel? Celebrate the Fourth at home

Tired of traveling for hours to get to that special spot you always go to for the Fourth of July?

Wish you could find a place near home where you and your family could have a great time, with lots of activities, concerts, and a great fireworks display? Somewhere where you could be sure the kids would be safe, but able to have a good time?

That place is right here. Wilmington's Fun on the Fourth celebration has earned a reputation for having a well-run program, with family-oriented activities that are close to home.

The activities start on Wednesday night, June 29, and run through Sunday night, with concerts and dinner on the common each night for five nights. The locally-owned Larry Cushing carnival sets up in the high school parking lot, giving youngsters something to do while their parents sit in their lawn chairs and listen to the music with their friends.

The experience is almost like a flashback, a slice of life that doesn't happen very often these days. It is a chance to slow down and spend some time close to home with your friends.

What could be more American than celebrating the Fourth of July in your own home town?

If there is a single problem you could call number one in holding a Fourth of July celebration, it is parking.

The Fourth of July Committee has a system of shuttle buses, and it helps alleviate the problem. Five buses are used to shuttle people to the common from various parking lots around town. Buses will run continuously on Saturday night from 6 to 11 p.m.

Route 1 will pick up passengers from the North Intermediate School parking lot and the Whitefield School, and drop them at the library.

Route 2 will pick up at St. Dorothy's Church and the Town Hall (Glen Road) and drop off at the Senior Citizens' Center on School Street.

Route 3 will pick up at the Woburn Street School and the Wildwood School, and drop off at the back lot at the library (the old Grange Hall site).

Route 4 will pick up at the Boutwell School, Deming Way and the fire station, and drop off at the American Legion Hall site. Drivers are cautioned not to park on the Route 5 will begin at the corner of Woburn and Lowell streets. The bus will proceed on Route 129 to the center and down Church Street to the high school driveway.

Parking will be banned on the following streets and areas: Adams Street, Church Street, Middlesex Avenue, School Street, Temple Street, Powderhouse Circle, Drury Lane, Loumac Road, Glen Road, Glendale Circle, high school lot, and high school turnaround.

Motorists should avoid parking in other posted "no parking" areas. Violators will be towed and fined.

The large parking lot at the Swain School will be available for parking, and will include a special area for handicapped parking. Other parking lots which may be used are: St. Thomas Church, Methodist Church, Baptist, old town hall, and the back lot at the library. Motorists may also park along the roadways in the Wildwood Cemetery, but are cautioned to avoid parking on the grass.

Each salon is specially designed to ensure that an individualized fitness program is created especially for you in a friendly and relaxed environment. And, Heavenly Body's Salons are also an ideal place to meet other women in your community who share similar interests.

At Heavenly Body's Fitness Salons, we focus on developing a body that is healthy and firm, utilizing a low-impact, non-strenuous approach to exercise. The result being a well-balanced figure with smooth flowing contours and beautifully toned muscles. This is the Heavenly Body's Advantage. A total health and fitness system just for you.

This town is for sale

You say you really like Wilmington? Really love it? Then why not buy it? You can.

The Game of Wilmington is a real-estate board game using real Wilmington business names on the squares. You can buy and sell such places as Rocco's, Church Street Hardware, Cavanaugh's Funeral Home and Charlie's Auto Body.

When you land on a square, you can buy it, unless someone else already owns it. If that is the case, you have to pay rent.

The first step to take to "own" all these businesses is to buy the game. You can do that for $10 at the Fourth of July Headquarters.

While you're there, you can also buy hats, t-shirts, sweat shirts and sweat pants, and-or a bumper sticker.

The proceeds all go to the Fourth of July Committee.
